Envoy at White House—When Lord Lothian called at the White House in August, 1939, as newly-appointed British ambassador to the United States, a black cat dogged his footsteps . . . perhaps fatefully forecasting the ill-timed end of his career. The envoy picked up the cat and posed with it for photographers.

ENVOY LORD LOTHIAN DIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Lord Lothian, the British ambassador to the United States, died today.

Announcement of the death of the man who has represented England's interests in the United States since August, 1939, came from the District of Columbia coroner. The cause of death, which came at 2 a. m., was uremic infection.

Lothian, 58, had been indisposed several days. He cancelled an appearance last night before the American Farm Bureau Federation in Baltimore and the speech he had prepared for delivery before the federation was read for him.

In the Baltimore speech Lothian reiterated a stand he had taken with increasing seriousness in recent weeks—that England would triumph in the war if given American aid.

His embassy made this announcement on the decease of the man who has represented Britain's interests in the United States since four days before his country declared war on Germany:

"The British embassy deeply regrets to have to announce that the Marquess of Lothian died early this morning.

"Lord Lothian was taken ill on Sunday night and although he continued to improve during Monday and Tuesday, he suffered a relapse last night. The cause of death was a uremic infection."

In his Baltimore speech the ambassador declared the issue of the war now depended largely on what the United States did and asserted that it was up to this country to decide whether "it is to your interest to give us whatever assistance may be necessary in order to make certain that Britain shall not fall."

Sec. of State Hull, on whom Lord Lothian usually called at least once a week for long and informal talks on mutual Anglo-American problems throughout the world, arranged to go to the embassy to express his regrets. Word was sent President Roosevelt in the Caribbean.

MORGENTHAU SHOCKED

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said he was "deeply shocked and feels that Great Britain has lost a very able and sincere ambassador."

Lothian, returning recently from an official visit to London, raised publicly the question of financial aid to Great Britain by declaring his country needed "planes, munitions, ships and finances."

The question of whether to allow American food supplies to pass through the blockade for relief of civil population in German-occupied countries also was raised with his government during his vis't to London, and the ambassador announced Tuesday night that it had been decided the blockade could not be relaxed.

Lord Lothian was popular alike with government officials and newspaper men.

When he called at the State Department, he talked freely with

Lothian Message To Yule Ship Plan Recalled

To workers for A CHRISTMAS SHIP FOR ENGLAND the death of the British Ambassador, Lord Lothian, today brought almost a personal sense of loss, for he was deeply interested in the movement launched by the Record-American, Sunday Advertiser.

With all the pressure of his diplomatic duties and social obligations, the Ambassador never forgot his distressed countrymen at home.

This was evidenced in the message he sent to H. G. Kern, publisher of the papers, on the occasion of the Christmas Ship broadcast over WEEI a fortnight ago.

His message, read over the air at the time, was as follows:

"Have heard with great appreciation of your plan to send a Christmas Ship to England loaded with clothing for the distressed victims of the air raids.

"I can assure you that nothing is more needed by my suffering compatriots, who have in many cases lost their all at the hands of the King's enemies, than warm winter garments.

"Their gratitude toward you and your organization in Boston for this most generous action will, I know, be unbounded as is mine.

"May the Christmas Ship be full.

(Signed) "LOTHIAN."

VICTORS IN EGYPT—With such troops as these, fighting on the desert terrain of northwestern Egypt, Britain staged a victorious offensive against the Italian armies of Libya . . . seizing three generals, thousands of soldiers, tons of munitions.

20,000 ITALIANS CAPTURED, DUCE ARMY IN FULL RETREAT

LONDON, Dec. 12(AP)—With the British claiming more than 20,000 prisoners and reports to London of a general Italian retreat, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told Commons today it would not be surprising if at least the best part of three Italian divisions were trapped in the Egyptian desert.

A communique from Cairo said:

"The latest estimate of prisoners taken exceeds 20,000, with tanks, guns and equipment of all types."

Thus was summed up briefly the British view of the results of the four-day British offensive which carried their mechanized forces to the Mediterranean coast and into the Italian base at Sidi Barrani, advance Egyptian port of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's forces.

Churchill, cheered wildly as he spoke, said 7000 Italian prisoners already had reached Matruh, British camp at the railhead of the line running eastward across the coast to Alexandria.

"It would not be surprising," he said, "if numerous Blackshirt formations had been either destroyed or captured."

PURSUIT CONTINUES

The prime minister said the British were still pursuing the Italians westward, with the Royal Air Forse supporting the attack and the navy shelling the principal road open to the Fascist forces.

He observed that it was "too early" to measure the scale of British operations, but said it was "clear they constitute a victory which, in this African theater of war, is of the first order."

The three Italian divisions to which he referred may number from 42,000 to 51,000 men.

The Cairo communique said eight Italian planes wereshot down yesterday and "one unidentified aircraft on the ground was destroyed." One British plane failed to return to its base, but another reported missing Tuesday returned.

UTTER CONFUSION

The aerial activity, the communique reported, was intense, the RAF bombing every Italian airdrome within range of their planes and machine-gunning blaskshirted troops in retreat. The Italians were thrown into "utter confusion," the communique declared.

A Reuter's, British news agency, dispatch from Egypt said the latest RAF reconnaissance flight data indicated a general Italian retreat was developing.

The British were reported to be

DUTCH DESTROYER VAN KINSBERGEN
Nabs Nazi Freighter Off Cuba

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Dutch destroyer Van Kinsbergen, a surprise companion of British men-o'-war on Atlantic blockade duty, today had accounted for the last of three German merchant ships which slipped out of the harbor at Tampico, Mexico.

The Van Kinsbergen took possession of the Rhein, 6031-ton German freighter, off the coast of Cuba, naval authorities here anouced last night. This terse statement was the first intimation here that Netherlands warships were operating in conjunction with British in western waters.

The navy reported the freighter's Nazi crew attempted to scuttle their vessel to prevent its seizure by the Van Kinsbergen.

Bombs Hit Churches in Midlands

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—German air raiders stabbed twice at London today without penetrating the capital's defenses after pounding the industrial Birmingham area and surrounding Midlands towns during the night with incendiary and explosive bombs.

London was under air raid alarm overnight for 14 hours.

Only one bomb was dropped on the London area in the day's raids.

A German plane flying at great height unleashed the explosive harmlessly in an open field as it was driven off by Hurricane fighters.

Among buildings hit in the Birmingham area were six churches, 11 schools, two movie theaters, private homes and public shelters, according to British reports (which seldom tell of military objectives hit by raiders).

Following the usual pattern, the first night raiders dropped incendiaries, which guided the second wave with its explosives.

Two formations of Axis warplanes attempted to penetrate to London by way of the Thames esmtuary, but they were reported turned back after a short battle with British fighters.

Two Messerschmitt 109 fighters machine-gunned shopping centers of a southeast coast town this afternoon. They dived in from the sea and skimmed rooftops. They fired six bursts each which broke a few windows and shattered roof slates.

Greenwich, Ct., police today were holding Joseph Spell, Negro chauffeur-butler, after he confessed thrice attacking his employer, Mrs. John K. Attack on Socialite Confessed by Butler

GREENWICH, Ct., Dec. 12 (AP)—A Negro chauffeur-butler, who, Assistant Prosecutor Archibald H. Tunick said, confessed thrice attacking a comely Greenwich society matron and later hurling her into a lonely reservoir, faced further grilling today after arraignment in court.

The suspect, Joseph Spell, 31, was arraigned before Judge Lewis E. Sisson in Town court who set bail at $15,000 and continued the case until Saturday. Spell, who made no plea, remained impassive during the brief hearing.

Tunick had announced he wanted a continuance to check all angles of the case, including one of possible kidnaping which brought FBI agents into the investigation.

Detective Sergeant Martin H. Nee, after visting Mrs. John K. Strubing, Jr., 32, at a White Plains, N. Y., hospital, said she accused Spell of forcing her to write a $5000 "ransom note," in addition to attacking her three times in her mansion Tuesday night, and several hours later throwing her with her feet bound into Lake Kinseco nine miles away in Westchester County, New York.

TELLS OF THREATS

Mrs. Strubing, Nee reported, related that Spell, threatening her with a knife, first attacked her in her bedroom after she emerged from a shower bath.

After she was thrown into the reservoir, Nee said the woman told him, the butler stoned her until "I decided to float as if I were dead."

She later struggled ashore, and was taken to the hospital by a truck driver and policeman.

Tunick said the butler's confession, made after 15 hours of continuous questioning, "duplicated in all essentials Mrs. Strubing's story."

Strubing, New York advertising man and one-time Princeton athlete, reached his wife's bedside last night after a hurried airplane trip from Cincinnati, where he had been on business. The hospital said her condition was not serious.

Mrs. Strubing was the former

Maureen O'Sullivan Pays Visit to Boston

Slim, soft-spoken Maureen O'Sullivan, motion picture heroine of many a Tarzan epic, came in Boston today.

She was en route from Halifax—where she had spent two weeks visiting her husband, John Farrow, a British Navy lieutenant—to Hollywood to resume work in the movies.

"With the war on, everything is so strict in Canada, I can't even tell you what ship Johnny is on," she said. "He's going to sail on active duty, but I can't say when.

"Everything in Canada seems to be optimistic at the way the war is going just now, these last few days, with the success of the forces in Egypt.

"My brother Jack is a captain with the forces that are reported to have captured Sidi Barrani.

"And everyone in Canada is so grateful to America," she continued, looking more than ever like a rather shy schoolgirl.

"Again and again I've heard people talk about the destroyers that were sent up. They all feel America is so interested in seeing Canada and England win."

Miss O'Sullivan's son, Michael, age a year and a half, is in Hollywood. On her arrival in Boston she was notified that she would not be needed for her new picture—"Billy the Kid"—for a few days, so she intends going back to Halifax from Boston tonight.

Sleet Storm Forecast for Bay State

Bad news for autoists—and good news for north-bound weekend skiers—was today's weather forecast.

Freezing rain and sleet in western Massachusetts and central New England and two to four inches of snow in northern New England was predicted.

The sleet storm was scheduled to hit Massachusetts late today and tonight.

Snow will fall in southern Vermont and New Hampshire, changing to freezing rain, according to the forecast.

ART CRITIC AIDS MODEL ACCUSED OF POSING UNCLAD

Art models have nothing to do with disposition of the finished work, a jury was told today in superior court where 18-year-old Shirley Warren of Dorchester is on trial, charged with posing unclad for camera fans.

SHIRLEY WARREN

Artists Aid Defense

The testimony was given by Franklin Jordan, who described himself as an art critic and said for 40 years he has been on the staff of several picture and photographic magazines.

Wearing a neat Van Dyke (permanent) and a Windsor tie (removble) Critic Jordan lent even more of an artistic air to the trial.

Then pretty Miss Warren herself was called to the stand to testify. She said she posed for pictures because she is a professional model and she was being paid $1 an hour.

POSED IN TREE

She is on trial on an appeal from a suspended sentence imposed on her in Roxbury court by Judge Frankland W. L. Miles.

It has been testified that although she was not present at a raid on a photographer's studio in Monadnock st., Dorchester, where 10 men were arrested, her photograph was one of many seized.

Today Miss Warren was questioned concerning this picture—which has her, unclad, posing on the bough of a tree. It was published in a magazine later banned by Boston police.

Shirley said she posed for that photograph in Westwood.

"I was sitting on the bough of

Starving Ma's Son Flayed In Court

Judge Elijah Adlow today in municipal court denounced as "a vile and vicious person" a 60-year-old West End man accused of taking his aged mother's old-age pension checks and leaving her starved and unconscious in a squalid basement.

He held Frederick M. Raymond of Myrtle st. until Saturday after finding him guilty of profanity, and asked police and probation officers to make a further investigation.

"This is the worst case within my experience," Judge Adlow said. "This man is a vile and vicious person.

"This is the tragedy of old age assistance. The state sends the check to these recipients but the state does nothing to make sure the funds are not diverted by vicious relatives or others."

Special Officer Denis G. Mahoney told Judge Adlow Raymond was supposed to be in court Dec. 5 on the profanity charge but reported he could not come because his mother died that day.

The officer learned, however, that the mother was not dead, and his investigation brought him into the squalid basement in Revere st., West End.

So overwhelming has been the response of all New England to the appeal for clothing and footwear for civilians of bombed cities and towns on the other side of the Atlantic that it will be impossible to handle any more gifts.

It is with sincere thanks to all who have helped the Christmas Ship movement reach an all-time high mark that the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser announce the end of the campaign.

It is with equally sincere regret that these newspapers state that those who have failed to make the deadlines for shipments may be disappointed.

OPEN 2D ANNEX

But it must be so, or those persons who most need the thousands and thousands of garments thus far packed and ready for delivery would be disappointed too.

So heavy was the flood of last-hour contributions in the past 24 hours that the Record-American had to open a second annex for sorting, packing and listing.

This was at 21-25 Otis st., and the premises were granted temporarily by the kindness of the Weeks Real Estate Trust Co. These also must be closed to any more donations.

700 CASES

At this moment, the exact returns on this campaign are not possible to report, or even estimate. There are still thousands of items to be listed and packed.

Filled, marked and ready-to-be-shipped cases, however, are far over the 700 mark.

Between tonight and Saturday noon all of the remaining gifts must be carefully checked and itemized before packing and binding of their overseas cases.

This is a staggering task which can only be done with the aid of more volunteers.

If YOU will help with this work, will you call LIBerty 2548, 2564 or 2658 and let the Christmas Ship committee know what hours you will work to complete the packing program?

Or if you find yourself with free time, come directly to either headquarters, at 100 or 72 Summer st., any time after 11 a. m. today, Friday or Saturday.

Your services can be used for an hour, for two hours and for any number of hours you may be willing to volunteer.

Boy Scouts of Troop 14, Cambridge, whose scoutmaster is Ivor Cuningham, did their good deed by working at headquarters for several hours. There were 10 willing youths under the direction of Patrol Leader Gerald Sears.

FLOOD SWELLS

The closing flood of contributions is swelling hourly.

From Charles F. Adams, treasurer of the First National Stores, was received 500 pairs of brand new rubbers and overshoes.

From the Crosscup-Pishon Post, No. 281, A. L., two dozen new Pepperell woolen blankets.

From the Chelsea Wool Dealers' Ass'n, 100 woolen blankets manufactured by the Sterling Fibre Co., of Waltham.

And from the Cape Ann Laundry & Dry Cleaning Co. of Gloucester, eight large cases containing nearly 1000 pieces of merchandise, collected from residents of Gloucester, Rockport and other Cape Ann communities.

Special tribute is paid to Mrs. John L. Bagg of Chestnut Hill st., Greenfield. She not only collected 10 cases of clothing for men, women and children by her own efforts, but paid $24.75 freight charges to insure their arrival in time for the Christmas Shipment.

PROVIDENCE AIDS

From the Universal Shoe Co. of Sterling, came a large number of cartons of assorted shoes, fresh from their stock.

Providence Business Men's Post 58, American Legion, collected nine large boxes of garments and shoes and paid the express charges to Christmas Ship headquarters.

Mrs. Irving Weisenfeld of Framingham, who headed a Christmas Ship committee in that city, reported that her list of brand new contributions were as follows:

One hundred raincoats and other rubber garments from Hodgman Rubber Co. of Framingham; two dozen pairs of boys' shoes from Goodwill Shoe Co. of Holliston, woolen garments from Gordon Mfg. Co. of Framingham, woolen jackets

LYONS STRONG BOX ORDERED TO COURT

Existence of a safety deposit box, held jointly by Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge and an assistant corporation counsel of that city, was revealed today in Middlesex Superior Court before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

Lyons is one of several persons under indictment in connection with the Middlesex County grand jury's investigation into the conduct of Cambridge municipal affairs, including the construction of public buildings since Lyons became mayor.

He is charged with conspiracy to solicit and accept bribes.

Existence of the safety deposit box was revealed when Judge Fosdick ordered it produced by the asserted co-holder, Asst. Corp. Counsel Joseph A. Deguglielmo, who had allegedly refused a grand jury request to produce it.

After this asserted refusal, Deguglielmo was brought before Judge Fosdick by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Albert Wunderly and told the judge that the box contains legal papers considered by Deguglielmo to be confidential matter between client and attorney, and thus not pertinent as evidence.

"However," he suggested, "I will produce the contents if your honor says so."

"Well, I do say so," declared Judge Fosdick.

So the assistant corporation counsel, accompanied by Wunderly and a court officer, went to the Harvard Trust Co. for the material.

According to Wunderly, the attorney refused the grand jury's request to produce contents of the box, but denied that his refusal was based on a possibility that they might tend to incriminate him.

LYONS STRONG BOX ORDERED TO COURT

Existence of a safety deposit box, held jointly by Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge and an assistant corporation counsel of that city, was revealed today in Middlesex Superior Court before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

Lyons is one of several persons under indictment in connection with the Middlesex County grand jury's investigation into the conduct of Cambridge municipal affairs, including the construction of public buildings since Lyons became mayor.

He is charged with conspiracy to solicit and accept bribes.

Existence of the safety deposit box was revealed when Judge Fosdick ordered it produced by the asserted co-holder, Asst. Corp. Counsel Joseph A. Deguglielmo, who had allegedly refused a grand jury request to produce it.

After this asserted refusal, Deguglielmo was brought before Judge Fosdick by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Albert Wunderly and told the judge that the box contains legal papers considered by Deguglielmo to be confidential matter between client and attorney, and thus not pertinent as evidence.'

"However," he suggested, "I will produce the contents if your honor says so."

"Well, I do say so," declared Judge Fosdick.

So the assistant corporation counsel, accompanied by Wunderly and a court officer, went to the Harvard Trust Co. for the material.

According to Wunderly, the attorney refused the grand jury's request to produce contents of the box, but denied that his refusal was based on a possibility that they might tend to incriminate him.

Father Wanted Boy; Gets One, And Girl Also!

BETHANY, Mo., Dec. 12 (AP)—Raymond King, informed his wife had given birth to a girl, was disappointed. He had hoped for a son.

"I'll go back and get you one," exclaimed the doctor.

He kept his promise. An hour later King was the father of twins.

First Fatality Hits Camp Edwards

SANDWICH, Dec. 12 (AP)—Camp Edwards recorded its first fatality today, that of Arthur Sullivan, 55, of Fall River, although construction has been in progress two and a half months and as many as 20,000 men have been employed at one time.

Sullivan, who had complained of illness, was believed to have collapsed and fallen beneath the wheels of an oil truck.

$7500 FIRE AT BEACON THEATER

Fire today in the Beacon Theater building, Tremont st., before the theater was opened to the public, caused a damage of $7500 and necessitated rush hour traffic being routed away from the thoroughfare between School st. and Scollay sq.

The fire, discovered by William Kitchen of College ave., Somerville, assistant chief usher, started near a fireplace in the theater lounge.

It worked into a partition and before it was extinguished it had badly damaged some of the executive offices.

Fireman Ernest Grimm of Rescue Co. No. 3 was the only casualty, suffering a lacerated right foot when he stepped on broken glass.

BLAST AT SHRINE BURNS 9

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12 (AP)—Nine persons suffered powder burns from the explosion of a basket of firecrackers among dense crowds gathered at the shrine of Guadalupe today for the annual tribute to the Virgin of Guadalupe.

HUB FIREMEN ELIGIBLE

Boston's fire fighters will take their chances on army life on equal footing with other civilians, Fire Chief Samuel J. Pope said today.

Charlestown Fire Forces 19 to Flee

Seventeen adults and two children fled in their night clothes today when a two-alarm fire raced through three wooden tenements in Medford st., Charlestown, casting a heavy pall of smoke over the Sullivan sq. area.

Firemen who searched the six apartments, a tavern and variety store for possible victims, said prompt action by James Kelley, a resident, prevented possible loss of life in the smoke-filled corridors.

Kelley, a linotype operator employed by the Boston Evening American, was returning home when he saw smoke pouring from the first floor tavern. He pounded on doors to arouse the two families living in the upper two floors, then roused other occupants as the flames spread.

AWAKENS WIFE

Running to his own home in the third house, Kelley awakened his young wife, Josephine, and, with her, carried to safety their two children, Robert, 8, and Pauline 4.

Other occupants who fled were John Sidorchik and his son, John, Jr., the Misses Lillian Perry and Georgia Leanon, Hugh Wells, Mrs. Julia Burke, Miss Julia Callahan, Peter and James McGowan, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pentowski and Mary, Anthony and Stanley Pentowski.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started in a ground floor and damaged all three adjoining houses. Damage was estimated officially at $6000. Cause of the fire was an overheated pipe.

Legionnaires to Man Forest Fire Towers

During the coming month American Legion members will man forest fire observation towers throughout the state to report the movement of airplanes, according to a plan announced by Conservation Commissioner Raymond J. Kenney.

The tests will be carried out as part of the Massachusetts air defense program set up by the United States Army.

2 IN TEARS IN FIGHT FOR CHILD

SALEM, Dec. 12—Once friends, now bitter rivals for the love and custody of a six-year-old boy, the child's mother and young aunt both collapsed in tears in Essex Probate Court here today.

The aunt, Mis Viola Carlz of Taylor st., Gloucester, sobbed on the witness stand as she testified:

"The child loves me and I love him. I hear his prayers at night and read him bedtime stories. His great-aunt, my mother, adopted him as a baby. And she and I won't give him up. We'll never let him go. Never! Never! Never!"

OPPOED TO MOTHER

Asked if she felt kindly toward the little boy's real mother, Mrs. Olga Rogers Bottoms, 24, of Gloucester, Miss Calz said tearfully:

"No I don't feel kindly toward her now. Not since she began trying to take that child away from us."

Atty. Carleton Parsons asked the witness:

"You don't want that girl ever to see her little son again, do you?"

"Not now," Miss Carlz testified.

Q—As far as your influence is concerned, Olga will never see her boy again? A—Yes, sir.

MOTHER IN TEARS

Q—Why? A—We love that child, and it's best for the child. My mother loves that child as if she had given birth to him. He's one of our family.

Q—You want to deprive the child of his own mother's love? A—She's his mother in name only. My mother and I both say that child will never leave our home. Never! He can't be taken away.

At this juncture Mrs. Bottoms, the real mother, burst into tears and seemed about to collapse.

The witness was also tearful, fighting back her sobs.

ATTORNEY TESTIFIES

Next witness was Atty. Richard Clark of Gloucester.

He testified he arranged the adoption of the boy, Edward Carlz, by the great-aunt, Mrs. Manuel Carlz.

The mother was unmarried at the time of the child's birth, Atty. Clark said. He told the mother state probation officers insisted there must be an adoption, he testified.

"I told Olga (then 17 years old and a high school student) she must realize she was giving up her child," Atty Clark continued.

"But Mrs. Carlz said, 'Well, it's Olga's baby. He's a nice boy. She can have him any time when she grows up and probably gets married.'"

Atty. Clark's testimony was interrupted here by Miss Viola Carlz, the previous witness.

Sitting among the spectators, she half rose and shouted:

"No, No. That isn't so."

She was quieted by court officers as the judge rapped for order.

Young Mrs. Bottoms, now the wife of Radio Operator Benjamin Bottoms of the U. S. Coast Guard base at Salem, is seeking to have the adoption set aside and to regain custody of her son.

ALDRICH IN HUB URGES CASH FOR BRITAIN

Generous financial aid for Great Britain, "before England's financial sands have run dangerously low," was urged today by Winthrop W Aldrich, chairman of the board of directors of the Chase National Bank of New York.

In an address before the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Aldrich asserted that if the pledge of both political parties favoring every aid to Britain short of war "means anything it means that our full industrial and financial strength shall be thrown into the scales on the side of England."

"Let us meet the issue head-on," he added, "without subterfuge or evasion, and put it directly up to Congress to provide Britain with the funds she will need in the near future. These funds can be furnished by a federal guarantee of British credit, by a loan from the United States Treasury, or in the form of an outright grant.

"For the purpose of the present discussion it makes little difference which method of dealing with the situation is follows. The main point is that the funds be available when needed."

Aldrich described England as "valiantly defending the ramparts of the democratic world, including our own," adding that 'we can no more afford to have England break down financially than we can contemplate her defeat in this war."

Saltonstall Reassures Bushnell

Governor Saltonstall told his press conference today that appointment of former Sen. Joseph R. Cotton as counsel to the Governor will not interfere in any way with the prerogatives of Robert T. Bushnell who takes office next month as attorney-general.

Cotton resigned his $8000 job as chairman of the state public utilities commission to take over the newly created position as counsel to the Governor. He will assume duties of the new office Tuesday, according to the Governor, who added that he has not made any agreement as to Cotton's salary.

NOT TO INTERFERE

"Sen. Cotton will in no way attempt to take over or interfere with the prerogatives of the attorney-general," said the Governor. "I told Mr. Bushnell what I planned to do before making the appointment. Sen. Cotton's primary job will be to advise me relative to legislative matters. There is no intention of interfering with the attorney-general's office.

"I decided to create the new position after a two hours' study of the office of the Governor of New York and after two long talks with Gov. Lehman. I found that Gov. Lehman was confronted by the same problems that I am.

FAILS TO ANSWER CRITICS

"During my first term of office I found it necessary to call in Attys. Charles Rugg and Raymond Wilkins for advice relative to ouster proceedings against state officials."

The governor declined to comment on editorials which severely criticized some of his appointments yesterday, including that of his chief secretary, Carroll L. Meins, as chairman of the state public utilities commission, despite the fact that Meins is not a lawyer and has had no experience in the public utilities field.

WINDSOR VISITS SNITE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec 12 (INS)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor were "profoundly shocked" to learn today of the death in Washington of Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States.

The Duke issued the following statement:

"The Duchess and I are profoundly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Lord Lothian. His passing at this time will be a great loss to both our countries for whom he labored so unceasingly in the cementing of friendly relations."

TALKS WITH SNITE

An informal visit in true democratic tone was paid by the Duke today to Frederick Snite, long time resident in an "iron lung."

The Duke showed the utmost consideration when arrangements were made for the visit. Snite had expressed a desire to visit the former British king at St. Francis Hospital but, instead, the Duke said it would be more convenient if he would visit Snite.

And so it was arranged. The Duke personally called on Snite at the latter's residence and conversed amiably with him. Young Snite was impressed and made tremendously happy.

IRON LUNG MAN HAPPY

The Snite family would not discuss the visit.

Reporters who went to the Snite residence were told it had been understood by them that there was to be no publicity.

After the Duke's visit Snite could be seen lying in a sun room on the second floor of the house. He was being attended by two nurses.

It was announced the Duke and Duchess have no plans to go to Washington. They probably will remain here a few days until the Duchess recovers from a dental operation and then return to the Bahamas.

A statement issued this afternoon by the Duchess' physician said:

"After forty-eight hours from the time of the operation the patient's condition is most satisfactory. No complications have developed and favorable recovery is expected. However, the Duchess will remain in the hospital at least until the expiration of the seventy-two hour post-operative period."

Dynamite Explodes At Plant Strike Scene

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 12 (AP)—A stick of dynamite wrapped in a newspaper exploded today on a loading platform at the Wheatley Mayonnaise Co., where workers have been on strike since Oct. 23.

Richard Wheatley, president of the concern, said guards were wetting the stick with a hose when it exploded, causing slight damage. He said the explosive had been thrown onto the platform.

British Closing Trap On 28,000 Italians still bombing and machine-gunning the Italians as they fell back from Sidi Barrini, advance Italian invasion base in Egypt, which fell to the British yesterday after a swift advance of their mechanized troops to the coast.

The British had been expected to capture between 28,000 and 34,000 troops caught by their wide encircling movement.

2 DIVISIONS TRAPPED

The Italian force bottled up by British troops which cut through west of Sidi Barrani to the Mediterranean seacoast consists of two divisions with a minimum of 14,000 and a maximum of 17,000 men each, it was said.

Two divisional commanders and the corps commanders already have been captured in Sidi Barrani, along with "large stocks of war materials," it was said.

The admiralty, meanwhile, announced that the royal Navy is "continually harrassing Italian communications" in an effort to "disorganize the Italian retreat in North Africa."

The announcement said that British ships had "heavily bombarded the focal points of the Italian retreat at Salum near the Libya-Egypt frontier and Bardia on the Libyan coast."

Other British ships, it was announced, fought a duel with Italian coastal batteries at Chisimaio, Italian Somaliland.

The Italian high command said a British cruiser fired several shots at Chisimaio without causing damage and was hit by coast defense batteries.—Editor's note.

The Italian corps commander reported captured in the Sidi Barrani zone was identified by military sources as General Sebastiano Gallina and the divisional commanders as General Amando Pescatore and General Mazzari.

These sources said the British success had been accomplished by three sudden attacks: a smash along the coastline at the Italian left flank, a heavy blow at Maktila, in the center and a thrust at the right flank which swept around northward to the coast at Buqbuq.

A large part of the more than 20,000 prisoners taken were in Sidi-Barrani, where these sources asserted, the Italians had been buildin reserves of war material since they occupied the town Sept. 18. Italians crossed the Libyan-Egyptian frontier just three months ago today.

Rome Practically Admits Big Defeat

ROME, Dec. 12 (INS)—Bitter fighting is in progress west of Sidi Barrani in the Buqbuq area of Egypt, the Italian high command announced in a war bulletin today.

This announcement was tantamount to an admission by the Rome high command that Sidi Barrani has been captured by the British, since it put the fighting west of the former Italian stronghold. The British offensive has been moving westward in the direction of the Libyan border—Editor's note.

Clash Reported Somewhere on Soviet Border

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (AP)—Red army border guards reported today that one man had been killed, two wounded and 23 captured in a "frontier clash" with an armed force of "intruders." The location and date of the fight were not disclosed.

A dispatch to the newspaper Comsomol Pravda, describing the encounter briefly, said two Soviet detachments halted the band after a brief exchange of fire.

Lothian's Death Shocks F. D.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today in a message to King George that he was "shocked beyond measure" at news of the death of Lord Lothian, the British ambassador.

The President's message, which originated aboard the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa, in the Caribbean Sea, said:

"I am shocked beyond measure to hear of the sudden passing of my old friend and your ambassador, the Marquess of Lothian.

"Through nearly a quarter of a century we had come to understand and trust each other.

"I am very certain that if he had been allowed by Providence to leave us a last message he would have told us that the greatest of all efforts to retain democracy in the world must and will succeed."

The United States government offered, through Secretary of State Hull, "all facilities at our disposal" to the British government in connection with the death of Lord Lothian, British ambassador, and it was believed in some quarters that an American warship might take the ambassador's body home.

HULL MOURNS STATESMAN

Sec. Hull also sent the following message to the British prime minister, Winston Churchill:

"It is with deep sorrow that I receive the news of the death of Lord Lothian.

"I desire to express to you and to the British government my sincere condolences.

"My country mourns with Great Britain the loss of this distinguished statesman who, with patriotic courage, wise counsel and unfailing devotion, rendered outstanding service to his nation and to humanity."

Other comment:

SECRETARY ICKES—"He knew America as few Europeans do. He was thoroughly democratic, knew our American habits and psychology and was very popular here. His death is a very severe loss."

JAMES V. FORRESTAL, acting Secretary of the Navy—"The death of Lord Lothian deprives us of a friend, one whose broad knowledge of world affairs will be greatly missed, and whose energetic personality brought closer the ties of the empire he represented and the United States.

PRAISE FROM McCORMACK

Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, Speaker pro-tem of the House—"His straightforwardness, together with his ability, made a profound impression in America."

Chairman Bloom of the House foreign affairs committee—"His simplicity, his kindliness and his unselfish devotion to the cause of the Anglo-American understanding have won him a high place among England's envoys to this country."

Sen. Austin (R.) of Vermont, the acting minority leader—"I hope his death will not disturb the equanimity of the relations between this country and the United Kingdom."

Sen. Davis (R.) of Pennsylvania, who lives next door to the British embassy—"He was a fine man and a good neighbor."

FASCIST EDITORS NOW SQUIRMING

ROME, Dec. 12 (INS)—A bitter attack upon Marshal Pietro Badoglio, former chief of staff of the Italian armed forces, was voiced today by Roberto Farinacci, editor of the newspaper Regime Fascista and chief spokesman for the Fascist party.

In a brief but pungent editorial, Farinacci accused Badoglio of failing to prepare properly for the Italian campaign against Greece and of "attempting to shift responsibility by lies."

Badoglio was removed from office last week and replaced by Gen. Ugo Cavallero, a little-known expert in mechanized warfare.

At the time of his retirement, an official announcement said Badoglio had been relieved of responsibility at his own request.

Farinacci, however, clearly indicated the contrary. He said:

"Someone—who should have remained silent—is now asserting among his henchmen in salons and hunt clubs—that he disapproved of the Greek enterprise.

"He is saying that he wanted more divisions.

"It is well to point out that he undertook the task without reservations, to carry out the action with forces already existing in Albania.

(A portion of the dispatch is missing here.)

"Everything else is contrary to the truth.

"Moreover, it is an infantile attempt to shift responsibility to the political command when it is obvious that execution of military conduct of the war devolved exclusively upon technical organs.

"The government was never stingy with money. The army was appropriated 1,700,000,000 lira ($85,000,000) for preparations. We had a right to expect that our armed forces would be at fullest efficiency at a time of hard test."

ROME, Dec. 12 (AP)—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, declared today that Britain had attempted to break Italy in the military field with "unusual armed forces" and on the home front by radio propaganda and "some agents more or less known."

The propaganda offensive, Gayda asserted, had failed. The editor did not say whether the "agents" were foreign or Italian.

Gayda said the British had marshalled unusual armed forces to break Italy and had added to them an "insidious" propaganda attack.

"This insidious operation," the editor declared, "which the British would like to carry out today with the aid of foreign radio and some agents more or less known inside the country, breaks again in face of the firmness of Italians."

Gayda said that Britain's "exceptional concentration of forces" against Italy was motivated by three reasons, which he listed as follows:

1—Because the English needed good news badly.

2—Because they needed to increase American faith in Britain's chances of victory.

3—Because they wanted to impose a war of nerves on Italy.

The Gayda statements, an editorial in Il Giornale d'Italia, did not say whether by "agents" the editor meant foreign provocateurs or Italian "pessimists," against whom other editorial writers have written.

Butler Admits Woman Attack

Eleanor Paul, of a prominent Philadelphia family. Her marriage was a highlight of the 1933 social season.

Nee claimed the woman said the Negro confronted her as she emerged from the shower, demanded money of her, and before she could give him any money, drew a knife from his pocket and attacked her.

BOUND HAND AND FOOT

Later, Nee said the woman told him, she was forced to go to her kitchen, where, she said, she was bound hand and foot and led into her living room, where she was attacked again.

Mrs. Strubing, Nee continued, told him that the Negro made her write a $5000 ransom note which she said she left in her home.

Then, the officer quoted the woman as saying, the chauffeur-butler forced her to get into her automobile, drove around for some time and then returned to the Strubing home and again attacked her.

At about 3 a. m. "he took me away in his car . . . I told him to stop because the bonds were cutting my hands . . . He cut the bonds on my hands . . . told me to get out and he got out and threw me over the wall into the lake."

As she struggled to free herself from her heavy fur coat and swim to the bank, her legs still bound ". . . he stood at the top of the bank, throwing stones at me . . . I decided to float as if I were dead, hoping to fool him into leaving . . . He went away and then flashed his flashlight over the water as I continued to float . . .

"When I thought he had gone I climbed up the bank and hid in a clump of bushes, but he came back and flashed his light over the water again. Then he went away in the car."

Volunteers Will Fill Most of 2d Draft

Volunteers are expected to fill most of the State's second call for 1717 men to be inducted into Army life for one year in January, draft officials stated today.

Most of the state's 173 draft boards report volunteers ready to fill demands of from one to 20 men per board, but an expected rejection rate of upwards of 25 per cent is expected to be filled partially by draftees.

The January group—more than three times the quota of 532 called in November—includes 314 from the 27 Boston boards, 80 from Worcester and 67 from Springfield. Induction into service is set for Jan. 3.

771 FOR 241ST.

The new batch of rookies will fill requisitions by National Guard regiments, 771 of them entering the 241st regiment now stationed in Boston Harbor fortifications and 310 more going to the 211th regiment of anti-aircraft artillery at Camp Hulen, Texas.

Other vacancies to be filled include 507 for the 68th Regiment, anti-aircraft, now at Camp Edwards; 300 in the 16th Medical Regiment at Fort Devens and 160 by the Corps Area command.

FIGURES GIVEN

Although only four Negroes are to be called in the second draft requisition, Col. William H. Draper Jr., War Department liaison officer, anounced that the proportion will be increased when Massachusetts' colored unit, the Third Battalion of the 372d Infantry, will be inducted on March 15, and additions will be required to raise the unit to full strength.

Sleepless Nights Don't Help Your Health

Perhaps It's Lazy Kidneys

When excess acids and poisons accumulate in the blood because your kidneys aren't acting as they should be — ill health from kidneys is apt to follow.

Some symptoms of sluggish kidneys often are: getting up nights — backache — nervousness — dizzy spells — difficult passage that sometimes burns — and swollen ankles.

Any druggist will sell you a 35 cent box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules — a grand kidney diuretic and stimulant that may do you a lot of good.

So why not play safe — Get a box today but be sure and ask for and get GOLD MEDAL — pure — the original — the genuine. Don't be an easy mark and accept a cheap substitute — play safe — look for the Gold Medal on the box — the sign of purity — 35 cents.

GREEK SURGE CONTINUES

ATHENS, Dec. 12 (AP)—Italian forces were reported today to have attempted counter-attacks at two points on the northern sector of the Albanian front, only to be driven back by the Greeks with heavy losses and lose the positions from which they attacked.

The Greeks were said to have captured a large number of prisoners and much war material.

Italian prisoners were quoted as saying that British Royal Air Force and Greek attacks on the airdromes at Durazzo and Tirana, main port of entry into Albania and the capital, respectively, had been so effective that the Italians had abandoned the fields.

VALONA BADLY DAMAGED

Fascist engineers were said to be building temporary fields from which to operate against and behind the encroaching Greek lines. Bad weather has curtailed air activity on both sides in the past two days.

A pilot of a reconnaissance plane reported that damage at Valona, a secondary port of entry into Albania, had rendered use of the harbor impracticable for large vessels. Piers and jetties were said to have been turned into masses of splintered wood and rubble.

Meanwhile, Greek fighting men driving up the south Albanian coast from Porto Edda toward the heights of Chimara, 20 miles to the north, are meeting scant resistance from retreating Italians, a Greek spokesman asserted today, but he acknowleged "very stubborn opposition in other sectors."

RETREAT CONTINUING

"The Italian retreat on the extreme left toward the heights of Chimara is continuing," the spokesman declared, "and not even the rear guard offered any serious resistance to our troops. More to the north Italians showed resistance which was very stubborn but our troops were not held up."

At one point in the northern sector, the spokesman said, "picked Italian units" counter attacked in an effort to recapture important heights but the attack was repelled with heavy loss to the Fascists.

"In the region of Premet and north of Premet the thrust toward interior Albania continued and Greek troops succeeded in occupying heights of very great strategic importance," he added.

WHITWORTH PROMOTED

NEW BRITISH AIR CANNON BLOWS NAZI PLANE TO BITS

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The airministry related today how a British fighting plane, newly-equipped with cannon, shelled a German Messerschmitt raider which "exploded into little bits in the air . . . like a bursting anti-aircraft shell."

A 21-year-old RAF pilot, the air ministry said, scored the first victory with the new armor-piercing cannon in an attack with three other RAF planes against 10 to 15 Messerschmitt 109s.

"At 15 miles over the Channel, I got them within range with my cannon," the pilot said.

"I fired a few rounds at one, but missed—perhaps because I was overtaking him so quickly.

"So I turned my attention to another German. This time, from dead astern, I fired very deliberately with my cannon.

"What happened was nothing I had ever seen before—not even in the pictures. I gave him two short bursts. The cannon shells went boom-boom and one must have struck his petrol tank.

"The Meserschmidt 109 exploded in front of me like a bursting anti-aircraft shell. There was a quick flash, a cloud of black smoke and bits were flying through the air. The stuff was simply dripping out of the sky.

"I broke away and looked around. The smoke quickly dispersed and of all the pieces falling around me there wasn't one I could recognize as any part of an airplane.

"It was the most amazing sight I have ever seen."

Regardless of the size of your pocketbook, you may now enjoy the convenience and prestige of having your checking account in New England's oldest and largest bank. Your money on deposit will be safe and you can pay by check — the modern and business-like way.

A First National checking account is inexpensive. The former $1 monthly minimum charge on accounts under $300 has been discontinued, and you now pay only for the services you use.

A call at the nearest First National office will give you complete information, or mail the coupon below.

We welcome small accounts. We invite you to make this bank your bank.

TYPICAL MONTHLY CHARGE UNDER THE NEW LOW RATES

Schedule of Allowance and Costs

SERVICE ALLOWANCE

Each deposit account will earn a service allowance of 10 cents a month for each $100 of average balance.

ACTIVITY COSTS:

Against the service allowance will be applied the following activity costs

Each check drawn	4 cents
Each deposit made	8 cents
Each check in a deposit	8/10 of 1 cent
Maintenance of account or readiness-to-serve cost	40 cents

How these charges are applied

Assume your average monthly balance to be $125.

The service allowance will be 10 cents

If you draw 10 checks during the month — and these appear on your statement — and if you make 1 deposit during the same period, the cost of the service you have used will be figured as follows:

*10 checks @ 4¢ each	40¢
1 deposit @ 8¢ each	8¢
Maintenance of account	40¢
Total Activity Costs	88¢
Deduct Service Allowance	10¢
Amount Charged to Account	78¢

* In this instance, average cost [illegible]

★ Consider these additional advantages

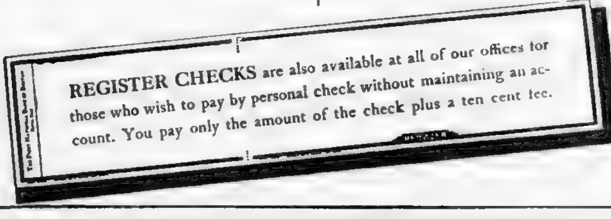
1. No charge in advance on checks.
2. No charge when account is inactive.
3. No special type of checks for small accounts.
4. Deposits may be mailed.



REGISTER CHECKS are also available at all of our offices for those who wish to pay by personal check without maintaining an account. You pay only the amount of the check plus a ten cent fee.

WAGE, HOUR LAW WARNING SOUNDED

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage and hour law administrator, warned industrialists today: "Enforcement of this act is as certain as death and taxes."

Speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers in its 45th annual "Congress of American Industry," Col. Fleming outlined the operation of the law governing minimum wages and the 40-hour week.

Upward of 4000 delegates representing about 7600 firms in the nation were told in his prepared speech:

"If you are not sure that you are in compliance with this law—and compliance is very simple—my advice to you is to make sure.

"Because our inspector will soon be around.

"When you go home, be sure to put your house in order . . . I commend this law to you. Its provision of a 40-hour week with an overtime penalty is enforcing the employment of America. And the minimum wage is filling many a Christmas stocking that otherwise would have hung empty."

The administrator asserted that manufacturers were not opposed to the 40-hour week, saying: "The protest about the 40-hour week is literary rather than industrial. It comes from columnists and professors, not from manufacturers.

"Perhaps this is the reason: In 1909, average weekly hours worked in factories were 53; in 1929, 46 hours; in 1939, 38 hours. The 40-hour week had arrived in manufacturing industries long before the law made it mandatory."

Youth Suicide In Auto After Rift With Wife

NORTH SEEKONK, Dec. 12—Brooding over estrangement from his young wife, according to authorities, George E. Taylor, 23, ended his life here today.

Taylor's small coupe was noticed standing for more than a day on Ellis ave. by Mrs. Alfred Ireland. Trooper Theodore Shimkus of the Rehoboth barracks found the man's body in the car.

An empty bottle that had contained poison was on the floor of the car, and six notes to members of his family and friends were found in the dead man's pockets.

Dr. Joseph W. Battershall, medical examiner, said the notes indicated that Taylor, estranged from youthful Mrs. Priscilla Taylor, had been brooding over marital troubles. The couple had no children.

Taylor, formerly a resident of Pawtucket, where his wife still lives in Central ave., had moved to a rooming house in Washington st., Taunton. He was employed by an auto accessory firm.

Corp John W. Collins of Rehoboth police said that the youth's father, Joseph T. Taylor of Holland ave., Pawtucket, told him that his son had been worried about his wife.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

FOR SIX DAYS IT WAS REPEATEDLY ANNOUNCED IN THIS NEWSPAPER THAT NEW ENTRIES TO THE GAME OF CHECK WOULD BE CLOSED ON NOVEMBER 23RD, AT MIDNIGHT, AND THAT NO NEW ENTRIES WOULD BE CONSIDERED AS ELIGIBLE FOR A PRIZE UNLESS THE ENVELOPE BORE THE POSTMARK OF MIDNIGHT, NOVEMBER 23RD, OR EARLIER.

We have received a number of entries, which have come in after this announced deadline, and are still receiving such late entries. In fairness to all contestants, we wish it understood that none of these entries which have come in after the announced deadline will be considered as eligible for a prize, and that all such entries have been duly disqualified in view of this.

If a contestant can submit an affidavit from his local postmaster stating that mail is not picked up in the late hours of Saturday evening and can prove thereby that his entry was placed in the mails before the stated deadline, then that entry will be permitted as qualified.

We wish to advise readers NOT to send in further entries for the first seven weeks' series, since same will not be considered and that deadlines for succeeding weeks must be observed.

We also wish to advise that readers who have sent in late entries may call at this office for a refund, since we have no wish to retain the entry fees of late contestants who cannot conform under the circumstances to qualify for a prize.

Contestants are asked to observe future deadline dates, so as not to be disqualified.

Contest Rules Reprinted Tues., Dec. 17

All persons taking part in the contest shall be deemed to be bound by the official contest rules which are printed in the Record and American from time to time as space permits. Copies of the rules may be obtained from the Record-American Contest Editor at any time.

CONGRESS MUST O. K. U. S. LOANS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau declared today that the Treasury would consider landing money to Great Britain only if congressional consent was obtained.

Joining Jesse H. Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, in defining this policy, Morgenthau said at a press conference:

"Irrespective of any interpretations any lawyers might give (of the Treasury's powers to lend money without the specific consent of Congress), I certainly would not be a party to any loan to Great Britain or any other country coming under the Johnson Act, without the direction of Congress."

Jones had first publicly declared the policy of congressional consent at a press conference yesterday.

Morgenthau said the Johnson Act, which forbids loans to nations in default on World War debts, might contain some loophole permitting government loans while prohibiting those of private interests but added:

"I don't care about the technicalities of it. I can understand the spirit of the law, and I told Senator Johnson (R) of California several years ago that I would not violate the spirit of it."

Asked whether he would go to Congress with a request for revision of the Johnson and neutrality acts to permit loans to Great Britain, Morgenthau said

"I am not prepared to say what I will or won't do. However, I must say again that no one has yet asked me for a loan."

MAGNESIUM FROM SEA TO AID DEFENSE

FREEPORT, Tex., Dec. 12 (AP) Metal from sea water will be utilized to speed the national defense program.

Shortly after the start of the New Year, the Dow Chemical Co.'s plant here will begin extracting magnesium—light, tough metal used in airplane manufacture—from the waters of the Gulf of Mexico rolling up to the Texas coast with a priceless chemical content.

Aircraft makers consume about 70 per cent of the magnesium alloys now available in the United States.

In some of the larger airplane engines, more than 50 pounds of magnesium is used. Germany for some time has used forged propeller blades of alloyed magnesium; in this country they are in experimental development.

Magnesium also is used in airplane landing gears, control levers and pedals, oil tanks and seats. It is about one-third as heavy as aluminum

WORLD'S ONLY PLANT

With magnesium, the cruising range of an airplane, the bomb load of a fighter, may be increased.

These facts lend importance to the Freeport project. The company will manufacture other products here, but because of the insistent demand initial production will be restricted to magnesium. Government orders already are on hand.

Refining sea water to obtain magnesium is an entirely new process, and the plant here will be the only one of its kind in the world.

The water will be drawn into the plant and treated first with lime, obtained from burning oyster shells. The resultant reaction with the water's magnesium chloride, gives a product from which electrolysis finally separates the magnesium.

After the process, the water will be turned into a channel which will return it to the gulf, six miles south.

It takes 300 gallons of water to make one pound of magnesium. Dow plans to produce 12,000,000 pounds per year. That will require 3,600,000,000 gallons of water.

The company figures one cubic mile of sea water would last it 800 years.

WORK FOR 5200

The Freeport project sprawls over 2200 acres; 5200 men are working on construction; the weekly payroll is $175,000.

Almost overnight, the population of Freeport, a town without a traffic jam until Dow Chemical moved in, has doubled. Lodging is at a premium, hundreds of workers commute from nearby towns.

So jammed are the schools that schedules have been revised. Half the children now go to school in the morning, the other half in the afternoon.

Asked whether two girls allegedly present in the studio at the time of the raid—Helen Foley and Dorothy Kovac—were professional models, Miss Warren testified that she believed the former to be a waitress and the latter a dancer.

Before her testimony, Leo O'Donnell, an instructor at the Massachusetts School of Art testified under cross-examination that he had employed her professionally at the school for life classes.

TRAINEES CAN VOTE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The labor board ruled that workers in a North Carolina textile plant called up for a year of military training under the draft law were eligible to vote by absentee ballot in NLRB elections.

3 Hurt in Car, Baby Escapes

Gerald Dahlin is only 16 months old but demonstrated today she is a bit tougher than these older men when his Pop's car was in collision with another at River and Franklin sts., Cambridge.

Although Gerald, who lives in New York, was bounced from his mother's arms by the crash, he landed right side up with the car and was uninjured.

Two men in the other car—William Daunt, 20, of Circuit st., West Hanover, and Paul Milward, 25, of Bennington st., East Boston, were less fortunate. Daunt was taken to Cambridge City Hospital with a possible skull fracture. Milward suffered head and neck injuries.

Gerald's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Dahlin, received a leg injury while his father, Silas Dahlin, 32, who was driving, was shaken up

Drivers, Beware Of Saturday Before Christmas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Maybe it's on account of the shopping throngs, but the census bureau says watch out for automobile accidents the Saturday before Christmas.

Records of the bureau showed that the automobile death toll on that day is two or three times as large as usual.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

LORD LOTHIAN'S LAST PLEA FOR U.S

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12—Here is the last address of Lord Lothian, British ambassador, in which he predicted the defeat of Germany, and stressed the need of speedy U. S. aid to the British:

It is now nearly five months since I made a public speech in the United States. Since then I have been home to consult with my government and to find out for myself how things were going in Britain. I want tonight to give you some of the conclusions I have formed.

In these last five months there have been tremendous changes. When last I spoke we had just experienced the terrific shock of the overthrow of France. Hitler seemed irresistible. First Poland had been overwhelmed, then Norway, then Holland, then Belgium. Finally came the destruction in less than a month's fighting of what had been rated as the finest army for its size in Europe, and the disarmament and division of France.

If you recall those dismal days you will remember that there was something like despair in many diplomatic and business circles in Washington, New York and other cities in the United States. What could be the future of civilization if France, that beautiful child of liberty, had erased the rights of man established at the Revolution and defended in three immortal words, Liberte, Egalite Fraternite, from her escutcheon.

Further, Hitler had announced that he would dictate peace in London in August, or at least by the middle of September. And had not he always been right about his military dates? Britain had saved her soldiers, it is true, by a miracle at Dunkirk. But they had lost all their equipment guns, tanks, motor vehicles, machine guns and rifles. The German Air Force, too, was known to be far superior in numbers to the Royal Air Force, and its dive bombers had just crushed the resistance of the French army. Was it not certain that England was going to be conquered and that with Hitler's crossing of the Channel the end of the British Commonwealth would come?

GLOOM REIGNS

If these were the gloomy prophecies in circulation about us, there were hardly less gloomy speculations about the future of the United States. If Hitler conquered Britain the British fleet would be sunk or surrendered or scattered among the British nations overseas. Yet was it not clear that American security required two fleets, the British fleet, based on Britain blocking the entry of hostile European fleets into the eastern Atlantic, and the United States fleet predominant in the Pacific?

It was this dual system which protected the Monroe Doctrine and which alone could keep war distant from American shores. That, too, was the time of the gloomy revelation in Congress that the United States was as unprepared for modern war as all the other democracies had been.

It was said that she had full modern equipment only for 75,000 to 100,000 soldiers, an air force which was very good in quality, but terribly small and with none of the reserves and organized manufacturing capacity of the nation behind it and an excellent navy, but a one-ocean navy facing the possibility of a two-ocean war. The prospect therefore, before the United States if the British fleet was sunk or surrendered or sailed away to the other parts of the British empire was not rosy.

With Hitler's and Mussolini's navies and the remains of the French fleet based on the eastern rim of the Atlantic and on strategic islands well out in the Atlantic, Iceland and the Faroes, the Azores and Teneriffe, would not the whole American fleet have to come back to the Atlantic, leaving the Pacific both north and south, at the mercy of Japan.

HITLER SUPREME

Moreover, even if some part of the British fleet passed across to North American ports it would not have a quarter as much value to North America. If Gibraltar and the West African ports fell into Axis hands, how could the United States defend the Monroe Doctrine, especially if some thousands of planes were assembled at Dakar with Fifth Columns in the Americas, elated and arrogant at the downfall of Britain.

Finally, what would happen to the rearmament program of the United States if Hitler and his allies, with Britain conquered, in possession of nearly all the strategic positions and the industrial resources of the globe, were able to build three battleships or tanks or airplanes for one against the United States.

Those June and July days were indeed gloomy days for us and for you. That was the period of Hitler's triumph when he went to the Invalides to commune with an earlier conqueror of Europe, to the Eiffel Tower to survey his new empire, and to Boulogne where once before a great army had been assembled for the conquest of Britain.

LORD LOTHIAN
British Envoy Dies

But that grim picture has been dispelled, in any case for the present, by the action of the people of a small island in the North sea, nobly and valiantly aided by the young nations of the British family across the seas. First there was the retreat from Dunkirk, not an operation likely in itself to bring victory, but [illegible] a testimony to the undiminished toughness and fighting qualities of British soldiers and sailors.

LAUDS CHURCHILL

Then came Mr. Winston Churchill, with all [illegible] of the rest [illegible], standing undaunted in the breach, defying in matchless oratory the apparently irresistible power and prestige of Hitler and National Socialism, and inviting his fellow-countrymen not to appeasement or retreat, but to resistance, at the price of blood and suffering, sweat and tears.

Then came the reports of your own air attaches, that the Royal Air Force had taken the measure of the German air force, despite its superiority in numbers, and was on the high road to establishing its supremacy over the British Isles. Then followed the great air battles of August and September in which the Germans lost nearly 200 machines in a day and five or six to one in pilots.

Then came the brutal bombing of London, and especially of East London, by night. Few people realize what an inferno that was. The first attack set great fires alight, so that hour after hour, night after night, the German bombers could return the short distance to their bases in France to collect fresh cargoes of destruction to unload on the stricken people of Dockland.

But there was no flinching before Hitler's attempted intimidation, no crying for peace, no suggestion that, though we were almost alone, we had had enough. The simple victims, blown out of hearth and home, declared that they would stick it if only others did and it led to victory. The air raid wardens, men and women the fire fighters, the police, the doctors and nurses, the voluntary services worked on hour after hour, day after day, amid the fires and the crashing of bombs, with heavy casualties, until they had rescued and tended the wounded, fought down the flames, and the new resources of the barrage and other devices brought the bombing under some control.

RAF FEATS

And finally has come the gradual petering out of the much heralded invasion of Britain. That invasion was really broken in the great air battles, when Hitler tried to beat down our air force and open the way for his ships and his troops. But every day it is made more difficult as our armies increase and their equipment reaches modern standards, and as our organization improves.

Thus if Hitler won the first round of the great battle which began in Norway in April, we have won the second. For without the conquest of Britain Hitler cannot win the war.

But the war is not yet won. Do not think that Hitler and Nazidom are going to be easily overthrown. Hitler is certainly going to make another attempt next year—and earlier rather than later—to beat down our resistance by new methods and still greater violence, and so open the way to world domination for the Nazis.

I do not think that even now we realize the true nature of National Socialism. The triumph of Hitler no doubt grew out of the despair which settled on Central Europe in the long years of war, defeat, inflation, revolutionary propaganda, and which grew out of the unemployment and frustration which followed from the absence of any real unity in Europe, the sudden restriction of immigration overseas and the attempt to combine the collections of reparations and war debts by the Allies and with the imposition of unjust tariffs after the war. That was what gave Hitler his chance.

HITLER'S AIMS

But modern National Socialism is the reassertion of the strongest tradition in German and Prussian history, the belief in the all-powerful military state, creating order and discipline at home by ruthless Gestapo methods and expanding its wealth and power by ruthless conquest abroad. Hitler has created a movement in Germany which is so unfamiliar to the western democracies as to be almost incomprehensible to us.

The central purpose of the democratic movement in the west of the last few centuries has been to enlarge the liberty and responsibility of the individual citizen. War and despotism have been anathema to the democratic mind just because they are both inherently destructive of individual liberty. We have almost lost the capacity to understand that war and conquest can be regarded and preached as heroic and legitimate ends in themselves.

INSPECTION OF NAZI
When Lord Lothian Vi

Yet that is precisely what National Socialism under the leadership of Hitler does. Nazism is the application of the principle of army organization, obedience and discipline to a whole nation, to men, women and children alike, partly as the basis of order at home and partly so that it can be used in war, total war, war without limit and without mercy, with its concomitants, propaganda and fraud, as the means of the total subjugation of other nations to serve the Nazi will.

SUBJUGATION

I repeat, it is almost impossible for us to believe that such a program can be made the central purpose of a modern nation. Yet it is beyond question that this is what Hitler's Germany stands for. Hitler and his party are not concerned to bring about juster frontiers in Europe between free peoples or a fairer distribution of colonial raw materials between the leading nations of the world. Their object is to subjugate others so that they and their resources can be organized on totalitarian lines for the benefit of the German military state.

And they believe that, provided they use that power with efficient ruthlessness, modern science and modern psychology have given them the means with which to create the greatest military empire the world has known. First, they demoralize and disintegrate their neighbors by the propaganda of fear, appeasement, pacifism and internal division. Then they knock them out by total war.

Hitler first used those methods to conquer the old Germany and to destroy all opposing forces within it. He then set out to organize Germany as a military state and propaganda machine of tremendous power. He then turned this terrific instrument on Europe to overthrow and enslave the peace-loving nations, one by one, first Austria, then Czecho-Slovakia, then Poland then Norway, Denmark, Holland, and Belgium until Europe save for Britain and Russia, now lies prostrate before him.

But that is not going to satisfy

. TO SPEED AID

IR-RAID RUINS AT DOVER
ited Scene of Destruction

Hitler and the National Socialists. If they are allowed to do so they will now go on to organize Europe itself for war and propaganda in order to use it for further expansion later on.

LORRAINE FATE

Under Hitler the free nations of Europe are never going to reappear. They are going to be reduced permanently to political impotence, so that they can act as the suppliers and serfs of the ruling German race. You can see the process beginning in the annexation of Lorraine and the transplantation of its people, and in the hideous treatment of the Poles. You can see it in the transportation of machine tools into Germany, so that Berlin will control all economic power and the rest of Europe has to toil for its masters.

Hitlerism cannot stop and become peaceful. Nazi Germany is organized for war and totalitarian economics and for nothing else. Its economic system, like everything else, is built on fraud. War and preparation for war are its only real remedy for unemployment.

This war, therefore, is not a war between nations like the last war. It is more of a revolution than a war, a revolutionary war waged by Hitler and his military totalitarian machine against all other nations and the free world in which we have lived so as to make them military, political and economic satellites of a totalitarian world empire. Then Hitler will have given the world peace—the peace of death and employment, the employment of a slave.

It is quite obvious that the only way of stopping the expansion of the Hitler Europe is to confront it somewhere with a power possessed of superior armaments and an impregnable strategic position. As we have found through bitter experience it will never be stopped by appeasement or concessions. It is equally obvious that there will be no freedom for the conquered peoples of Europe until the authority of the Nazi group and its brutal philosophy have been overthrown in Germany itself.

WAR ON SEA

Today, however, we have still to build up the peace which will certainly be able to stop Hitler. Hitler, as we have seen, has lost the second round of the war. But we think that he certainly is going to renew the attack on Britain with all his might this winter and spring. Everything else is for him a side show. But if he can destroy Britain he and his friends will have won the basis of world domination.

But this time he is going to concentrate on the sea. He has failed to overwhelm us in the air and we are sure that he will continue to fail, while with your help our power to hit back with our bombers will steadily increase. But he is building submarines and long-distance planes with all his might and main with which to bomb the convoys and to announce their location to the submarines. He will base them on all the ports and aerodromes along that line which runs like a vast semi-circle round Britain, from Narvik down the northern and western coasts of France to Spain.

He will have two new 35,000-ton battleships, the Tirpitz and the Bismarck, and other vessels in the North Sea early next year. With these he will try to deliver a knockout blow at our communications so as to prevent us getting the food, the raw materials and airplanes necessary to enable us to continue the war at full strength. The danger, of course, springs ultimately from the fact that in the last war we had the support of the Japanese, the Italian, the French and, after April, 1917, of your navy, whereas today, since the disappearance of the powerful French navy, we are fighting alone. Our navy, therefore, with the tremendous tasks which rest upon it, no one of which it shirked or evaded, is strung out and terribly thin.

WARNS U. S.

We think that this is a situation which concerns you almost as much as it concerns us. It has long been clear that your security no less than ours depends upon our holding the Atlantic impregnably and you the Pacific. So long as this is so the way of life to which we are attached can continue and our free economic system can resist totalitarian attack. But if one of those two navies fails the unity of the British Commonwealth begins to disappear, control of the trade routes begins to pass to the Axis powers and those controlling bastions of sea power which now keep war away from America become the jumping-off points from which it can be menaced.

Moreover, the Axis-Japanese pact of September last makes nakedly clear the ultimate objective of totalitarian strategy. As soon as an Italian or German army or fleet can occupy Gibraltar or northwest Africa, or Great Britain's control of the Atlantic has been sufficiently weakened to cause doubt where the American fleet should be stationed, the two-ocean attack on us, both in the Atlantic and the Pacific, will be simultaneously launched. The more secure is our control of the Atlantic the less likely is the two-ocean war to break out.

We have both, therefore, a vital interest in decisively defeating the now rapidly mounting naval attack on the communications of the British Isles. It is the best way of preventing the spread of the war. And it is an essential step to that victory which will eventually follow the failure of Hitler to destroy Great Britain, both by air and by sea, and the uninterrupted flow of American munitions to the British Isles.

DANGEROUS YEAR

We have no illusions, therefore, about 1941. It is going to be a hard and a dangerous year. Our shipping losses have recently been formidable. In one week British, Allied and neutral losses were nearly 200,000 tons. Only one of the two passages to Britain round Ireland is open to us, which enables Germany to concentrate its submarines on the other. We are suffering, on the average of October, 200 civilian deaths and 300 civilians mutilated every night from enemy bombardment, and our food supplies are gradually being more strictly rationed.

But we are not in the least dismayed. With help from you we are confident that we can win, and win decisively in 1942, if not before. We are confident, first of all, for spiritual reasons. The core of Hitlerism is moral rottenness, the belief that the use of utter brutality and ruthless power in the prosecution of domination is the road to greatness both in individuals and nations.

WHEN REPORTERS INTERVIEWED LORD LOTHIAN ON ARRIVAL AT NEW YORK
Late Ambassador Gave Out Statements That Britain Was Nearly Broke

Hitlerism is the tragedy of Germany. Its doctrine is not true. All history proves it wrong. The Sermon on the Mount in the long run is much stronger than all Hitler's propaganda or Goering's planes and bombs. The core of the Allied creed, for all our mistakes of omission and commission, is liberty, justice and truth, and that we believe will infallibly prevail, if we have the resolution and the courage to resist to the end.

STRONGER EMPIRE

But on the side of armaments also we have great and growing assets. The curve of our munition and airplane production is steadily rising—despite the bombing. The number of our divisions, of our airplanes, of our pilots is also steadily going up.

What is more important, the young nations of the Commonwealth, Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, are fast getting into their stride. The number of their divisions is increasing. You will soon hear of their prowess on more than one front, as you have heard of the New Zealand Achilles in the Graf Spee battle and the Australian Sydney in the Mediterranean.

The Canadian training scheme is rapidly coming into action. You will be staggered at what will come out of Canada soon in the shape of trained pilots and men. And Canada produced perhaps the best airmen [illegible] in the great war. Australia and New Zealand are producing [illegible] South Africa is actively [illegible] air and on land [illegible] and in the S[illegible]

"ITALY CRACKING"

But as long as we can hold these positions, we and the [illegible] world beyond them are safe. Napoleon saw that all war is a struggle for position. Our second task is to enable us to deliver increasingly formidable blows at Germany itself, at her allies, one of whom is already beginning to crack, and to bring assistance to the subjugated peoples now once more beginning to show signs of a resistance to Hitler's will. The heroic Greeks now striking a mortal blow at the prestige of Mussolini and his system are showing how much the position has already improved since the legend of totalitarian invulnerability was broken last September.

But the result is not yet secure. It will be put to the test in 1941. If we can now stave off the attack on Britain, if we can last out next year still holding all the positions I have mentioned, Hitlerism in the end must go down unless Admiral Mahan is all wrong. By ourselves we cannot be sure of the result, though we will try our best. Not only is there the situation in the North Atlantic I have described, but no one can yet tell what the constant pressure of Hitler both on the Vichy government to give him control of the French fleet and bases in the Mediterranean, and on Japan to extend the war to the Pacific, may lead to.

PRODS U. S.

But with your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea, and in the field of finance now being discussed between your Treasury and ours, we are sure of victory—sure that the gangster menace to human freedom, the greatest the world has ever seen, will do down to the oblivion it deserves.

It is not for me to try to tell you what you ought to do. That is entirely for you to decide for yourselves. IN Governor Saltonstall's bag of new jobs there is said to be a particularly desirable one for Eugene C. Hultman.

This, according to State House information, is the office of Public Works Commissioner.

It is regarded as especially important because the incumbent administers contracts valued annually in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN

"A Familiar Face"

If the Executive mind does not change and Mr. Hultman gets the job, he will be paid $7500 a year.

For the past three decades this gentleman has been on and off and mostly on the government payroll.

In fact, according to his own reckoning, he has received about $150,750 in compensation from his various elective and appointive posts.

At the present time, as chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission and as ex-officio member of the Metropolitan Water Supply Commission, he is getting $8500 a year—$6000 from one and $2500 from the other.

Apparently the Governor is quickly forgetting the promises of the recent campaign.

Hoping to prolong his stay on Beacon Hill and fearing that the dark clouds of defeat were hanging too low for comfort, Mr. Saltonstall spoke convincingly about bringing "new faces" into the State service, getting rid of the "perpetual office holders" and giving the "other fellows" a chance.

If ever there was a "familiar face" and a consistent holder of appointive jobs, the man is Eugene C. Hultman.

IN CAMPAIGN CHATS the Governor also liked to stress his ability to pick the right man for the right job.

Yesterday, in his selection of a man to be parole commissioner, Mr. Saltonstall had a splendid opportunity to match his words with deeds.

Instead he chose his secretary, J. Robert Ayers of Weston.

Mr. Ayers is undoubtedly an intelligent young man, probably as intelligent as most young men of twenty-nine years.

He is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, an institution distinguished for its contributions to agriculture, and Boston University Law School.

But, because he is only twenty-nine, few can say that J. Robert Ayers possesses the experience, knowledge of life and mature judgment to consider paroles as deliberately or as reflectively as the scores of eminent older men Mr. Saltonstall might have nominated.

A similar choice is that of Mrs. J. Verity Smith of Boston to succeed Miss Mary E. Meehan as assistant labor and industries commissioner.

Miss Meehan has long been identified with the cause of labor.

Throughout the country she is generally regarded as an authority on workers' problems and minimum wages.

Mrs. Smith, on the other hand, has been best known through her work with the Camp Fire Girls of Greater Boston.

A business college graduate and a secretary for eight years before her marriage in 1920, she has been active in civic and women's club affairs.

But her biographical sketch, released through the Governor's office, fails to identify her with the shoe and textile industries, with which, as commissioner, she must become familiar.

Mrs. Smith will probably accumulate a wealth of experience in her investigation of mills and persons who operate mills.

But Mary E. Meehan already has the experience!

A FEW WEEKS AGO, in the press, on the platform and over the radio, the Governor was a vociferous disciple of economy.

But yesterday! With a straight face and without a blush, he created A BRAND NEW JOB and gave it to his friend, Joseph R. Cotton, who retired as chairman of the Utilities Commission.

As commissioner, Mr. Cotton received $8000 a year.

In the new job, elaborately titled "Counsel to the Governor," he is expected to get $10,000.

Of course, Mr. Saltonstall can obtain legal opinions concerning State matters from the Attorney General any time he wishes with no extra charge to the taxpayers.

But, apparently, Mr. Saltonstall prefers to have his office cost the people more money.

For, although the echoes of his economy pledges are still ringing in the air, he goes brazenly ahead and proceeds further to burden the taxpayers with another official to support and another wage to pay.

On The Side

By E. V. DURLING

FEW PARENTS of many children feel they have too many. Take Newspaperman Ben E. Decotte who has six youngsters and is out to have as large and fine a family as Ambassador and Mrs. Kennedy. Ben says: "Surrounded by our loyal little troop of six my wife and I glory in their devotion, and our love for each other grows deeper and greater" . . . That chop suey is not a Chinese dish and the Chinese never eat it is something I knew. But have just learned chile con carne is not a Spanish dish and the Spaniards don't care for it. The Spanish national dish is something called cocido.

I NOW HAVE two readers in Ecorse, Mich., twin sisters. That's quality circulation for you. To celebrate this outstanding achievement I will sing while shaving tomorrow: "I Want to Be Home Again, in Michigan, Down on the Farm." That is, if I can remember the words . . . "I suppose the next thing we know you will be trying to tell us how to raise our daughters," says a San Franciscan. Well, I hadn't thought of going into that, ma'am, but I will say every mother should see to it that her daughter is so prepared that she will be able to support herself if necessary. This will make her independent and more likely to marry for love.

WHAT ARE the 20 most beautiful words in the English language? One vote taken on this question resulted in following selection. "Melody, splendor, adoration, eloquence, virtue, innocence, modesty, faith, joy, honor, nobility, sympathy, heaven, love, divine, hope, harmony, happiness, purity and liberty" . . . "Wasn't Bing Crosby born in Spokane, Wash.?" is query. No, ma'am, Bing is a native of Tacoma, Wash. In the Indian language, Tacoma means "Near Heaven" . . . Young woman on a diet told me she was going to take off 30 pounds in a month. I said it was a mistake but she wouldn't listen. Most anybody should reduce is a pound and a half a week. A period of six months should be allowed for taking off of 30 pounds. All right, ask your doctor.

SO YOU'RE an expert on the Bible. All right, the word "eternity" appears but once in the Bible. Where? . . . A non-snorer says she has an apartment with three other girls and they all snore. Most unfortunate. But consider the plight of a reader who is at the Veterans' Hospital in Aspinwall, Pa. Says he, sadly: "There are 31 snorers in my ward" . . . "Brazil makes friendly gestures to United States," says a headline. That's a smart thing to do when you consider that Brazil produces two-thirds of the world's coffee and the U. S. uses three-fourths of world's coffee. Only chumps fight with their best customers.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

MY DAY

NEW YORK, N. Y., Wednesday —We held a meeting yesterday of the committee for the National Achievement Award of the Chi Omega. In the afternoon, I had a small tea for various people who have come to Washington for one reason or another, and whom I had not had an opportunity to see.

In the evening, I attended the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra concert which was, as always, refreshing to the soul. After that, I took the night train to New York City, so that I might have a full day here. My first official appearance will be at the sale for the blind at 11 o'clock this morning.

While I am talking about the sale for the blind, I think I might mention an appeal which has come to me from Helen Keller on behalf of the American Rescue Ship Committee. This ship is to bring refugees from Lisbon, Portugal, to various safe ports on this side of the ocean.

More directly in line with her work for the blind is a second appeal from Miss Keller, asking for help for the institution for the Chinese blind. They are trying to reoccupy their school in Shanghai, which was closed because their workshop was wrecked by war conditions. If you can send something through Miss Keller, she will be grateful for a contribution to either or both of these interests.

I HAVE just received a notice about the Christmas cards being sold by Parents' Magazine. Eighty-five per cent of the cost of these cards goes into a fund for needy children, sponsored by the magazine. This fund distributes the money thus raised to charitable organizations throughout the country and renders outstanding service to children in need.

This is a way in which you can buy something almost all of us need, and at the same time do something for unfortunate little children at this time of the year, when they should be uppermost in our minds. Christmas is the feast for little children, instituted because of the birth of a little child many years ago.

More in sorrow than in anger, someone called to my attention the fact that I had said a great deal about a book called Happy Days in Czechoslovakia, but had never mentioned another book called "Jenik and Marenka," by Zdena Trinka. I hastened to acquire the book, and I hope that many other people will do likewise, for it is delightful reading.

I think children will enjoy it greatly. The illustrations are not quite as attractive or as distinctive as are those done by Mr. Yurka Bures in the other book but I think you will like the one right at the beginning of a little girl feeding the ducklings. Many of the other illustrations have charm, even though they seem a less vital part of the book than those done by Mr. Bures in the other Czechoslovakian book.

RUTH DRAPER PLAYS WITH NEPHEW

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Col. "Wild Bill" Donovan's mission for the President will conclude with a trip to the Greek-Italian front, where he will report upon the effectiveness of American planes . . . The movie production for which Thomas Mann is securing private financing is the adaptation of his 1927 story, "The Magic Mountain" . . . A series of movie shorts will be produced, featuring round table discussions of current events in which a group of commentators will participate. Dorothy Thompson, Raymond Gram Swing and Alsop and Kintner will be among them . . . Paul Draper will perform with his aunt, Ruth Draper, in a series of 10 concerts here, starting Christmas week.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

WHEN the "Life With Father" company dined at the White House, Russel Crouse was seated at another table, while his wife, Alison Smith, sat with Howard Lindsay, next to the President . . . Alison was extremely nervous. A butler placed a White House plate before her—a plate decorated with flags and eagles. Alison gasped when her hairpin dropped on to the empty plate in front of her . . . She stared at the pin, not knowing what to do until Lindsay nudged her and whispered. "If you were half a patriot you'd eat it."

FRED FINKLEHOFFE and John Monks, Jr., have so much faith in their new musical, "Hi-Ya Gentlemen," that they've put $40,000 of their own money into the show . . . The script for the American Rescue Ship Mission broadcast will be written by Sherwood Anderson, Louis Bromfield, Ring Lardner, Jr., and John LaTouche . . . When Mady Christians arrived at the American Theater Wing meeting at the Algonquin, she heard some one say: "There's Mady Christians," and the response: "And a Happy New Year" . . . Bette Davis saw Tallulah Bankhead perform in "The Little Foxes," the role which Bette will play in the movie version. She went backstage and told Tallulah: "You've scared me to death. I'm a little afraid of playing it now."

WHEN Diana Barrymore made her debut in the theater last week she received from her father the legendary apple presented to all Barrymores upon their entry into the theater . . . Diana now has two movie offers—one from Sam Goldwyn to play opposite Gary Cooper; the other from MGM to do "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde" with Spencer Tracy. She wants to go to Hollywood to convince her father that he must return to Broadway and play "King Lear" or "Bill of Divorcement" with her . . . The Grand Duchess Marie, who now works for Bergdorf-Goodman, attended the employes' party there. "The only thing I minded was when the Swedish window dresser kissed me," she confessed later, "because it wasn't an ADMIRING kiss" . . . Mrs. Robert Henriques, whose husband wrote the prize-winning novel, "No Arms, No Armour," brought her children to America last week and is flying back to London to rejoin her husband . . . George Price's "Good Humor Man" is one of the year's funniest books.

RENEE CARROLL is the daughter of Rabbi Shapiro, who serves a devout congregation on the lower East Side. Fifteen years ago she came to Broadway determined to make a name for herself. The first thing she did was to change her name from Shapiro to Carroll. The next thing she did was to get a job at Sardi's, where now she's become the best-known hat check girl in America . . . Renee is the author of a book, "In Your Hat." She has her own radio program. She is one of the editorial associates of a magazine. And Gertrude Lawrence, for the new Moss Hart show, has ordered her hair dyed a "Renee Carroll red." Renee Carroll, daughter of Rabbi Shapiro, really has made a name for herself . . . Her constant escort now is a handsome young manufacturer. His name is Shapiro.

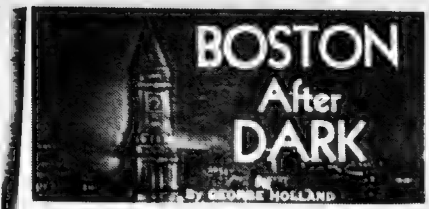
MAJOR SCHOFIELD, who is in charge of immigration, naturalization service and border patrol, has been working from a hospital bed the last two weeks. Schofield, anxious to preserve his excellent record in this job, sustained a compound fracture of the leg, but will return to Washington next week.



UMPIRE BILL KLEM'S PROMOTION to supervisor of the National League's staff of arbiters makes a timely story of Producer Jed Harris' identification of Klem's most bitter foe . . . Incidentally, one would not suspect Producer Harris, one of the ranking intellectuals among the Broadway managers, of being an intense baseball fan

JED CAN "BARBER" with Broadway's best, as was earned when he came to town the other day . . . The one-time "white-headed boy" of the theater, moreover, is accepted by certain baseball stars as an oracle . . . Twice recently, Jed has been selected to settle arguments between members of the Moe Berg-Al Schacht-Dolly Stark clique.

DOLLY STARK—who will be umpiring again next season—paid off a champagne bet (and the "bubbly" is expensive these days) on Jed's say-so on the matter of the Red Sox second-baseman in 1912 . . (Jed says it was Yerkes . . .) Mel Ott was one of the debaters in another argument revolving around the question: "Who is Bill Klem's most bitter foe?" . . . Mr. Harris, who produced "Our Town," replied with authority that Frankie Frisch was the man.

IT SEEMS THAT "UNCLE FRANZ" has been heckling Klem for years, but the devilish fashion in which he has been annoying the veteran play-caller has not, to this column's knowledge, been given much publicity . . . The Frisch-Klem vendetta began when Frisch was managing the Cardinals . . . Whenever Klem would call a play against the Frisch team, Frankie would rush on field with fight in his every gesture

THE PLAY DIDN'T HAVE to be even close . . . Just as long as it went against the home team, out would rush the former Fordham Flash—his arms waving, jaw out-thrust . . . to the hoots and cheers of the stands (the hoots for Klem), Manager Frankie has made a show of extreme anger—with his jutting chin almost within range of Bill's punching arm. . . . But what the stands don't hear is Frankie's supposedly warlike message to the umpire . . . It's always the same, and is delivered mildly and in velvet tones: "How's Mrs. Klem?"

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Charlie Barnet's marriage to lovely Harriet Clark finally made a myth of Press-Agent Horace McNabb's cute notion of wedding Maestro Barnett to another McNab client, Phyllis Brooks . . . (Some columnists along the Main Stem resented it) . . . But Charles did fly to Boston ostensibly to see Miss Brooks when the Hollywood red-head was here in "Panama Hattie," and such an expedition often is enough to set off an earnest press-agent along a soundtrack leading to Lohengrin . . .

(WHICH REMINDS US THAT WE would like to incorporate a "Who Cares About the Loves of Victor Mature Club?") . . . Anyway, Mrs. Barnet is Boston-bound in "Crazy With the Heat," a Christmas week entrant . . . But the former Miss Clark is reported as having trouble with her memory . . . Harriet is a principal in the new revue, but the kid can't forget her previous servitude in the chorus . . . Every time the dance director's whistle blows for rehearsal of a chorus routine, Harriet automatically joins the line

POOR PHIL BAKER IS SAID TO HAVE staked his insurance on the chances of "All In Fun", and reports of Phil's blow-off with Producer Leonard Sillman are still reverberating . . . Mr. Baker asked the assembled company of the show if it were true that they had demanded that he be dropped from the cast . . . When a chorus of "Noes" greeted the question, the comedian turned on Mr. Sillman—quite savagely, they say . . . Meantime, Nancy Noel has quit the show . . . Mr. Baker and six other principals have dropped out since the revue hit Boston . . . One of Phil's complaints is that he was so busy promoting money to back the show, he hadn't time to be an actor.

'MARY DUGAN' ROLE TO LARAINE DAY

By Louella O. Parsons

Laraine Day

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12—When the talkies first came in and Norma Shearer was put to the test to see whether she could speak lines, she was given "The Trial of Mary Dugan," one of the day's then successful plays. She and the picture were both excellent. Now M-G-M has taken this old play off the shelf, rewritten it and given it to Laraine Day for her next starring vehicle. Edwin Knopf has been commissioned to produce the exciting melodrama which served Ann Harding on the stage and also brought her fame

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" was different in that the curtain remained up in the stage play and it had an unusual twist at the end. It gave Bayard Veiller, the author, considerable prestige—in fact it was the play which first attracted the attention of the theater-goers to him.

JUDY CANOVA

"THE CORN IS GREEN," the Ethel Barrymore play by Emlyn Williams, is by far the biggest dramatic hit New York has had in several years. Of course the asking price for the film rights is terrific and unless there can be a radical change in story I doubt if M-G-M will buy it. There is an illegitimate child in the story, and censorship being what it is, I don't see how the story could be filmed without changing the entire plot. Perhaps M-G-M could do what Sam Goldwyn did with "The Children's Hour" ("These Three") and build a different premise. Kenneth McKenna, M-G-M story editor, says that he read the play as long ago as it was produced in England when Emlyn Williams played the starring role.

WONDER how many people out of Hollywood realize that the Republic studio stands on the site of the old Mack Sennett lot? So it is certainly fitting and heart-warming that Herbert Yates has decided that their new $250,000 sound stage, completed next week, will be dedicated to the memory of Mabel Normand. The dedication ceremony will be lavish with so many of the beloved little comedienne's former co-workers invited to take part. Judy Canova should be flattered indeed that her next picture, "Sis Hopkins," will be the first picture filmed on the new stage.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Justine Johnson Wanger, formerly Mrs. Walter Wanger, has adopted two tiny babies—both boys; Greg Bautzer's birthday gift to Dorothy Lamour was diamond earrings shaped like wolves heads; the Florence Rice-Dabes Frantz romance is getting hot enough to be noticed; both Bill Orr and Owen Ward have been visiting Brenda Joyce in the hospital. She goes home Friday

JACKIE COOPER realized the ambition of his life when he played the drums in Tommy Dorsey's band; Marie Frey, who has been mentioned as Phil Harris' favorite girl friend, was at the Hollywood Tropics with Artie Shaw; on Dec 27 Hollywood will attend the opening of Macombo, a new night spot which Charlie Morison and Felix Young are sponsoring. That's also the eve of the Santa Anita opening; Bob Crosby will bow out of his radio program Jan. 1 because of the ASCAP fight, which makes it impossible to get the tune she wants.

MARGARET ETTINGER flew to Chicago on business. She'll be back Monday; couldn't help but notice how very much alike Gloria Vanderbilt and Lady Furness look. They were at the dinner Mrs. Jules Stein gave. Lady Furness may do something in the movies. She had a long talk with Sam Goldwyn. So did I. Sam, who is permanent chairman of all charities, has done a wonderful job. He gave a dinner last night in honor of L. B. Mayer at the Hillcrest Country Club. All of the committee members were present to compliment L. B. on the swell job he did on raising funds for the community chest—nearly half a million.

PAT MORISON, who has gotten thin and is really one of the loveliest looking girls in town, was at the Stein dinner; Cobina Wright and her mother were there. Cobina is one of the prettiest girls I have ever seen. Bob Taplinger, Baroness Erlanger, Bill Haines were among the guests at the Stein party. Like old home week for this writer, who has been away so long.

Color Epic Now At Para-Fenway

"North West Mounted Police," Cecil B. DeMille's technicolor record-breaker, comes to Paramount and Fenway screens today to repeat its Met success doubtless.

On the same bill will be "Youth Will Be Served," starring nice Jane Withers who's growing up into one of our better young stars.

The star-spangled DeMille picture boasts in its cast Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Paulette Goddard, Robert Preston, Preston Foster, Akim Tamiroff, Lynn Overman and many others.

Briefly, it traces the effects of the Indian rebellion on the lives of many people, including the courageous Mounted Police and a Texas Ranger who is out to capture one of the leaders of the rebellion.

Scollay, Modern Get Davis Hit

Boston's favorite daughter, the screen's brilliant Bette Davis, is the star of "The Letter," screen version of the Somerset Maugham melodrama now on the Scollay and Modern screens. Supporting players include Herbert Marshall, James Stephenson, Frieda Inescourt and Gale Sondergaard.

"Tugboat Annie Sails Again," with Marjorie Rambeau, Alan Hale, Jane Wyman and Ronald Regan, is the co-feature.

Normandie Bills 'The Westerner'

Normandie's screen brings "The Westerner," with Gary Cooper and Walter Brennan, to its patrons tomorrow through Monday. On the same bill will be "They Knew What They Wanted," co-starring Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton.

'Nellie Kelly' at Loew's Saturday

The final showing of "Third Finger, Left Hand," the Myrna Loy-Melvyn Douglas co-starring picture on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, will be tomorrow evening.

This picture and the co-feature, "Dr. Kildare's Crisis," will make way on Saturday morning for "Little Nellie Kelly," starring singing Judy Garland supported by a cast including George Murphy, Charles Winninger and Douglas McPhail. The companion picture will be "Escape to Glory," with Pat O'Brien and Constance Bennett.

Calhern Guest At College

Louis Calhern, who portrays the beloved and blustering "Father" in Clarence Day's famous comedy, "Life With Father," at the Civic Repertory Theater, will be guest of honor at Emerson College today.

Speaking before the student body, he will give them a first-person account of what happens "From Try-Out Reading to Opening Night."

BEACON'S FILMS

Beacon's current screen features are "Buck Benny Rides Again," starring Jack Benny with his man, Rochester, and "One Crowded Night," with Billie Seward and William Haade.

Sherry Britton Stars In Globe's New Revue

Sherry Britton, Spanishy burlesque beauty, is the reigning charmer of the new traveling revue due on the Globe stage for the week, starting tomorrow. More than 65 minor beauties, comics, songbirds and assorted cuties are included in Miss Britton's supporting company. In the beauty division are Lee LaVon and Diane Shaw, who are notably decorative.

For fun unconfined, the Globe gives you "Red" Buttons, well-known as "My Tailor, Sam," who heads the galaxy of gagsters including Mac Dennison, Murray Leonard, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson.

Vaudeville's representatives are headed by Ned Walsh and June Marshall, dance team; Don and Martin, whose specialty is eccentric dancing; Lynn Barry, impersonator; Alla and Nova, vocalists, and Bruce Norman.

On the screen will be shown "Sea Devils," co-starring Victor McLaglen and Preston Foster, and "The Cat and the Canary," the chuckle-and-chatter mystery picture co-starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard.

Reservations are now in order for the Christmas Eve midnight show, starting at 12:10 a. m., and the special milkman's matinee, at 2 a. m.

Dorchester Liberty Open Week-Ends

First-run and first-rate revival screen attractions constitute the new policy for Dorchester's Liberty Theater, open weekends only—Friday evenings, Saturday and Sunday—at new low prices.

Mask-Wig Show Has 17 Scenes

The Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania, which is bringing its 53d annual production, "High As a Kite," to the Boston Opera House tomorrow evening, has a record of 802 performances in 31 cities to its credit during its more than half-century of existence.

Since "Lurline" started the Mask and Wig Club on its long and successful career in 1889, 2837 undergraduates have performed in its shows.

"High As a Kite" is in two acts, with 17 scenes, in which Ben Franklin runs riot in his efforts to further the matrimonial yearnings of Abigail Dinglebender, his ward's sister. Franklin was chosen as the central figure in tribute to the university's bicentennial year. The production is a blend of 1740 costumes and scenes and modern advertising methods and characters.

'Arise, My Love' Tops Uptown Bill

Uptown's new screen bill, starting tomorrow, will be headed by "Arise, My Love," co-starring Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland, and "The Long Voyage Home," Director John Ford's magnificent sea picture with Thomas Mitchell, Ian Hunter, John Wayne, Barry Fitzgerald and John Qualen.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

MARIE NASH who has joined the cast of "All in Fun," now in its final week at the Shubert.

Marie Nash Joins 'All in Fun' Cast

Marie Nash, seen here in "Higher and Higher," "Too Many Girls" and George M. Cohan's "I'd Rather Be Right," is the newest addition to the cast of the Bill Robinson-starring musical revue, "All In Fun." The Leonard Sillman production is now playing its final week at the Shubert Theater.

'Souls in Pawn' Stays at Gayety

Another Britton from burlesque is being featured in Boston.

She is Ginger Britton, alias "blonde bombshell of burlesque," who is starring in the Gayety Theater's current screen attraction, "Souls in Pawn." It and the companion picture are being held over a second week, starting tomorrow.

The story is partly based, it is said, on Miss Britton's own life and gives her and some of her footlights contemporaries opportunity for some teasing sequences. As the heroine, Miss Britton is presented as the foster mother of a baby she has adopted for publicity purposes. Later the real mother breaks up a stage performance to reclaim her child.

The co-feature, "Mutiny on the Elsinore," is one of the screen's most exciting sea pictures.

New Cranberry Salad Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

Cranberry sauce is as much a part of Christmas as holly in the window or tinsel on the Christmas tree. We certainly expect to see it on the dinner table, but it needn't be served just as plain sauce. Turn it into a colorful salad for a change.

Cranberry Poinsettia Salad for instance, cleverly contrived in orange cups presents a perfect companion to the Yuletide roast. Fit for King Santa himself, this fruity cranberry poinsettia plays a happy role with any main course. The combination of cranberry and orange is ideal, of course, with roast duck, excellent as an accompaniment to the traditional roast goose, and delicious with that favorite glazed ham.

CRANBERRY POINSETTIA SALAD

1 envelope plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ cup hot water
½ cup crushed pineapple, thoroughly drained
⅓ cup orange pulp
6 oranges
1 17-oz. can jellied cranberry sauce

Soften gelatin in cold water; dissolve in hot water. Pour hot liquid over cranberry sauce and beat with rotary beater until smooth. Chill to thicken slightly. Cut tops from oranges, and with grapefruit knife, remove all pulp and membrane so that inside is smooth. When gelatin thickens slightly, fold in orange pulp from oranges and pineapple, and pour mixture into orange cups to overflowing. Chill until very firm. When ready to serve, place on lettuce and cut oranges with sharp, hot knife to make six "petals," by cutting oranges down in six sections. Do not cut all the way down. Carefully spread points out and place a spoonful of creamy mayonnaise in the center. Orange shells serve as a decorative containers for the cranberry jelly. Makes 6 servings.

But don't wait until the Christmas dinner to serve cranberry sauce. The sweet-tart jellied sauce is delicious in cookies, as well as in many other tempting goodies. You'll want to make plenty of cookies ahead of time for special holiday treats, so try these new and different ones for Christmas.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES

1 cup butter
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tbsp. grated orange rind
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tbsp. grated lemon rind
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 cups flour
1 cup chopped walnut meats
Canned jellied cranberry sauce

Cream butter, add sugar and egg yolks. Add orange rind, vanilla, lemon rind, and lemon juice. Sift flour before measuring, then sift into first mixture. Shape into balls, roll lightly in slightly beaten egg whites, then in chopped walnuts. Make depression in top of each ball and top with a cube of jellied cranberry sauce. Bake on greased cookie sheet in a moderate oven, 3[illegible] deg. F., about 20 minutes.

CRANBERRY CHIFFON PIE

1 baked 9-inch pie shell
1 cup cranberry sauce
2-3 cup sugar
4 eggs
[illegible] tbsp. gelatin, heaped
[illegible] cup cold water
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup whipping cream

Place cranberry sauce, 1-3 cup sugar and egg yolks in the top of a double boiler and beat until mixed. Heat, stirring constantly until custardy, about eight minutes. Add to gelatin which has been softened in the cold water. Add salt and lemon juice. Cool until the mixture begins to congeal. Beat egg whites until stiff and gradually add remaining third cup of sugar beating until sugar has been thoroughly dissolved and mixture becomes a stiff meringue. Fold into the cranberry mixture. Fill baked pie shell and chill until firm. Whip the cream, sweeten slightly with sugar and flavor with a few drops of vanilla. Spread over pie just before serving.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

MORE about those "High School Frats" which still persist in spite of the fact that, in most of our states, they are unlawful. The reason for such anti-frat laws is obvious

High School Fraternities and Sororities are undemocratic. They encourage discrimination in public schools, which are supported by all tax-payers equally. They impose cruel humiliation on the great majority of children who cannot afford their dues and amusement expenses. Their existence is an open defiance of law . . . and an encouragement to law-breaking. In spite of which facts, many High Schools countenance such organizations saying, "It is impossible to do anything about it!"

RECENTLY this column exposed these facts. The data was taken from the city of San Francisco, where an open and multiple defiance of this law exists. But many another great American is equally culpable . . . a particularly vicious condition at a time like this.

IF EVER YOUNG AMERICA SHOULD BE TAUGHT TO RESPECT AND OBEY THE PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY, IT IS NOW. AND THOSE WHO AID A CHILD TO DEFY SUCH PRINCIPLES—BE THEY PARENTS OR TEACHERS—ARE TRAITORS TO THE CAUSE THEY PRETEND TO SERVE.

To which Mrs. Ruth N. Moore, of Toledo, Ohio, responds with a hearty "Amen." It's another of those "Columnist-for a-day contributions".

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"I'm thoroughly in accord with your campaign against illegal high school 'secret societies' . . . and equally indignant at the parents who wink at such outright defiance of the law

"We have here the same situation which exists in California and many other states. Our eighth graders are given booklets from which they are expected to select their courses of study for the next four years. Included in these booklets is a paragraph stating that high school frats and sororities are declared illegal by State Law, Section 12906; and that membership in such societies is punishable by a fine of not less than $10 or more than $25. They are, therefore, familiar with the law in this respect, before entering high school.

"Naturally, I respected this law as concerned my own children, but I regret I cannot say the same of some other mothers. To the contrary, they acted as if such a law didn't exist and went right ahead, making every preparation for 'bids,' buying expensive dresses, rushing around to teas, parties and dinners.

"Being one of the few mothers who can still say 'No' and make it stick, I merely looked at these antics with disgust, thinking how little real thrill would be left for these girls when they entered college—and wondering how parents could be swayed by snobbishness that would permit their daughters to discard all sensible standards.

"I frankly blame the older people for the whole condition. I'm one of that great majority who believe that our public school system does a marvelous job in some respects but fails tragically in other. A child grows up but once, and if he is warped then, the injury is lasting.

"MRS. O. L. MOORE,
"Toledo, Ohio."

Should This Girl Wait?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For a long time I've known that he loves me even as I love him, but he hesitates because of his school. He has two more years in college and then says he couldn't marry for several years. Neither one of us wants to be tied up in an engagement for such a long time.

I continue to accept invitations from other boys but am wondering if it's wise for me to consider marriage to him at all, since I am already past 20. He says he would never stand in the way if I learned to care for someone else in the meantime.

PERPLEXED.

You see all [illegible] so clearly that I [illegible] long talk, you will [illegible] your own decision. The young man has two years of college and [illegible] could not marry until he is settled in his profession and [illegible] of supporting a wife.

If you are what is known as "desperately in love," you would not count the cost of waiting at the present time, even if you [illegible] your mind later and decided you'd better not wait for [illegible]. Under these circumstances, why don't you continue [illegible], each being free to [illegible] social contacts without [illegible]?

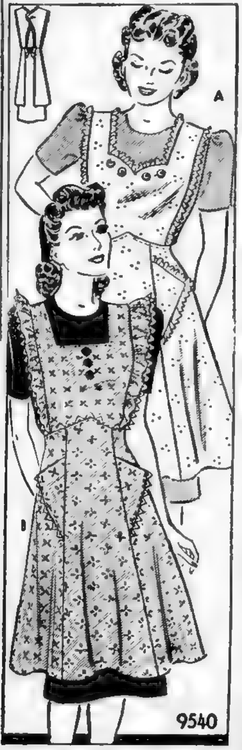
Perfume Tablets for Gifts

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S A CENTURIES old example . . . the gift of fragrance at Christmas time . . . so you couldn't do better than follow it, whether you're buying for grandma or a glitterbug.



Still hot on the trail of supplying information on "little gifts" that look like a lot, we've discoverd something extremely usual . . . perfume in tablet form! It's a brand new way of sacheting everything with a fragrance that is not only lasting, but extravagant in quality at a budget price!

These round pastel tablets are potent bits of magic . . . they're like that genie out of a bottle . . . for the amount of fragrance they carry is all out of proportion to their size.

A smart little roll package, all white and gold and cerise, holds a dozen perfume tablets for 65c. They don't have to be tucked into silk bags. They're like pretty petals when scattered through closets, bureaus, shoe and hat boxes.

Some wise girls like to sew them in linings of fur coats or even dresses. Sew them in satin or velvet hangers. And if you put one on a lamp bulb your rooms will smell as though you continually supplied them with hot house blooms.

The story on perfume tablets is that they are triple-strength fragrance, using some of the best flower oils available in the world. A dozen tablets contain the equivalent of ½ ounce of perfume extract.

Though you may have some marvelous flower odors, there are also blends which are characteristic of smart, sophisticated perfumes . . . so choose for your type! There's honeysuckle, rose, a tweedy outdoors fragrance, a real gardenia, and one very exotic Parisian blend.

If you'd like all shopping information on these unusual perfume tablets, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Pattern 9540 may be ordered only in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38) and large (40-42). Small size, apron A, requires 2½ yards 35-inch fabric and 4¼ yards ruffling; apron B, 2½ yards 35-inch fabric and 3⅞ yards ric-rac

To get this pattern send 15 cents to Boston Evening American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th st., New York, N. Y. Ten cents additional will bring you our newest Pattern Book.

SOCIAL BUTTERFLIES for a day . . . No debutante will ever have a more complete day of partying than the University of Pennsylvania Mask and Wiggers who arrive in town tomorrow to present their 1940-41 musical revue, "High as a Kite," to a socially prominent audience at the Opera House tomorrow night . . .

From the time the boys are whisked away from the station in the early morning by the Boston reception committee, till they climb aboard again in the wee small hours of tomorrow morning, they will be feted at a series of festivities . . .

After the final curtain at the Opera House, members of the cast will remove their frilly feminine costumes (yes, the boys play the roles of dainty feminine chorus gals) golden wigs and glamorous make up and proceed to the Copley-Plaza where they will be guests at a cabaret in the Sheraton Room . . . This party has been arranged by Jean Clark, Anne Whipple and Charles B. Coburn . . . Stellar lights from professional theatrical ranks will be on hand to greet them and applaud their impromptu song and dance numbers from the show . . .

Among the many Bostonians serving as patronesses for "High as a Kite" are Mrs. Edward K. Allen, Jr., Mrs. Edward M. Anderson, Mrs. Donald W. Ash, Mrs. Horace Ash, Mrs. Ralph U. Brett, Mrs. William H. Brennan, Mrs. Morris J. Butler, Mrs. Thomas Claflin, Mrs. George Crompton, Jr., Mrs. Alfred Douglass, Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Jr., Mrs. Herbert H. Howard, Mrs. James Howard Means, Mrs. Walter E. Newbert, Mrs. Richard Norton, Mrs. William Phillips and Mrs. Dudley Pickman . . .

Notes From a Society Editor's Cuff

CHRISTMAS greeting cards from the schooner Yankee and its popular skippers, the Irving Johnsons, have arrived from Singapore . . . The Johnsons are on a cruise around the world and report that in spite of the war they have visited practically all the Pacific islands and ports originally scheduled on their itinerary when they sailed from Gloucester a year ago last month . . . P. S. on the card says they'll be looking forward to seeing all Boston's sailing fans waiting on the dock when they land back in Gloucester next April 27 at 2 p. m. sharp! . . .

Eleanor Motley and David Ames, who are to be married the Saturday before Christmas, will be toasted by their friends at a bridal dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. William Ladd and their daughter, Kaki, of Milton . . . The couple will make their new home in Washington . . .

Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain have moved up from Cohasset to spend the holidays at their Beacon Hill home . . . After Christmas they will depart to spend the rest of the winter at Sea Island, Georgia . . .

CHRISTMAS Shoppers . . . Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker and Mrs. Arthur Dupee, Jr., believe in the old Christmas slogan of downtown storekeepers, "Please carry small parcels" . . . On a shopping tour the other day they had all their bulky purchases sent home but gingerly carried a small paper bag containing peppermint candy canes . . . Mrs. Parker, former prexy of the Vincent Club, wore a becoming pale green wool dress AND a hat (she seldom does) with a squirrel coat . . . Mrs. Dupee, the former Connie Turner, was modishly dressed in purple tweeds with hat and purse to match . .

The Christmas holidays mean more than a vacation from books and classrooms for E. Sohier Welch, Jr. . . . An instructor at St. Mark's school, Southboro, he is celebrating the vacation by being married to Mary Corbin Eddison, prominent Gotham society girl . . .

Tennis Star To Wed Soon

Helen Pedersen nationally known tennis player and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthon Pedersen of Noroton Hill, Stamford, Ct., will be married on Feb. 1 to Edward H. Rihbany, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Rihbany of Longwood Towers, Brookline.

Miss Pedersen won the girls' national tennis title in 1934 and the Bermuda Invitation Championship in 1936. During the past four years she has ranged among the first 10 women players in the U. S. A. At present she is assistant fashion director at a leading Boston department store

Luncheon Bridge Held

CECILIAN GUILD members assembled at the Fox and Hounds Club yesterday for their annual Christmas luncheon and bridge. It was one of the season's outstanding parties . . . with every available spot in the spacious Beacon st. clubhouse used for extra tables required to fill last minute reservations.

Mrs. Joseph Rugo, Jr., of Milton . . . luncheon chairman . . . put in a busy hour or so checking off lists of arriving guests. She wore a corsage of red roses with her black crepe frock and small black velvet turban. Mrs. Thomas J. Kelley of Jamaica Plain, president, topped her black dress with a veiled velvet hat. Mrs. John Walsh, the vice president, wore a gray Krimmer coat with a matching turban.

WEARS SILVERY BLUE LAME

Also glimpsed Mrs. Gerald J. Culhane . . . attractive in silvery blue lame with matching hat . . . Mrs. Vincent Greene . . . president of the League of Catholic Women . . . smartly outfitted in moss green ensemble . . . had Mrs. William J. Bannan of Waltham as her luncheon guest. Bright red hat with the latter's taupe gray suit and sable scarf.

Mrs. Peter Connolly and Mrs. Robert Cross motored up from Osterville for the party . . . they were guests of Mrs. Gerald Culhane Mrs. Frederick Mansfield . . . wife of our former mayor . . . wore a garnet hat with her Persian coat . . . silver fox trimmed hat with Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Jr.'s, black frock . . . gay Roman striped velvet turban with Miss Margaret Culhane's gray crepe dress . . . matching hat with Mrs. Frederick E. Dillon's royal blue gown . . . mink-banded brown hat topped Mrs. John B. Atkinson's beige dress.

GREEN ENSEMBLE

Mrs. Charles Sullivan . . . the former Cappy Ryan . . . was the essence of chic in mink-collared red reefer, mink edging the brim of her matching hat . . . her sister, Mrs. John Downing, was in bright green ensemble.

Others attending the gala event were Mrs. Edward McLaughlin, Mrs. John McManus, Mrs. William F. Kane, Mrs. David Gentlee, Mrs. Hugh Donehue, Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Sr., Mrs. Henry S. Fitzgerald, Mrs. William Creed, Mrs. Philip E. A. Sheridan, Mrs. Frank Breath, Mrs. Joseph Fallon, Mrs. Robert Stanton, Mrs. William Drummey and Mrs. John Colbert.

LOTHIAN'S LAST PLEA TO U. S.

But [illegible] will [illegible] and [illegible]. If Britain and [illegible] of the Atlantic and the islands which lie off its shores, Iceland, the Azores or bases like Dakar fall into the dictators' hands, or if you are unable to defend the island fortresses in the Pacific, then the jumping-off grounds go against you, the oceans become a passageway and your power to strike back at an enemy disappears because you have no bases from which to do so.

The last thing I want to say concerns the future. There were two things which I found the ordinary citizen in Britain thinking about. The first was that all his and her suffering and sacrifice should if possible, end, not all war, for human nature is probably not yet ready for that, but the kind of total war Hitler is waging, with its hideous mutilation and destruction from the air and its brutal persecution of conquered peoples.

SOCIAL PROBLEM

The second was that after this war no one who had done his duty should be thrown on the scrap heap of unemployment, with nothing but a bonus or dole. Somehow or other employment must be found for everybody. Some people are spreading the legend that democracy is disappearing from Britain and that she will come out at the end of the war a Fascist or a Communist state. Nothing could be further from the truth, I have never known Britain more truly democratic. The British are not going to change their essential character. It has shown itself in this war. They will move forward, of course, with the times, but without revolutionary violence.

But the more people think about the future the more they are drawn to the conclusion that all real hope depends upon some form of co-operation between the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations. Even if we win a total victory there will be no chance of immediately creating an effective new League of Nations. There will be nothing in Europe out of which to make it. A majority of the younger generation consist of people who have been educated in such brutish doctrines as blood and earth, that might is right, that Jews are social poison or that business men are hyenas only fit for destruction. No man can even say what the France of tomorrow will be like.

POST-WAR TASK

The plain truth is that peace and order always depend not upon disarming the police but upon there being overwhelming power behind just law. The only place where that power can be found behind the laws of a liberal and democratic world is in the United States and in Great Britain supported by the Dominions and in some other free nations.

The only [illegible] upon which a stable and peaceful and democratic world can be built after this war is if the United States and Great Britain possess between them more aeroplanes and ships of war and the key positions of world power, such as I have described, than any possible totalitarian rival. Then and then only will political and industrial freedom be secure and will it be possible for a free economic system to prevail against the economics of totalitarianism.

If we are to set the world going again, not only must we have strength, but we must not adopt the fatal policies we all pursued after the last war, the establishment of prohibitive tariffs, trying to collect fantastic reparations and war debts across these tariffs, and then hoping to dodge the inevitable consequences of those follies by a policy of reckless lending. Markets and employment for all should be the main purpose of post-war economic policy.

I have done. I have endeavored to give you some idea of our present position, of the dangers and problems of 1941, of our hopes for the future. It is for you to decide whether you share our hopes and what support you will give us in realizing them. We are, I believe, doing all we can. Since May there is no challenge we have evaded, no challenge refused.

If you back us, you will not be backing a quitter. The issue now depends largely on what you decide to do. Nobody can share that responsibility with you. It is the great strength of democracy that it brings responsibility down squarely to every citizen and every nation. And before the judgment seat of God each must answer for his own actions.

DEATH OF LOTHIAN SHOCKS CAPITAL

newsmen, sometimes "off the record," in contrast to the more formal and aloof attitude adopted by most previous British ambassadors here.

EYED PUBLIC OPINION

The problems of the war and especially those of getting material American assistance imposed a heavy strain on the ambassador and this was believed to have contributed to his death.

Avoiding large social functions in favor of small dinner discussions with select groups of Americans Lothian displayed an unusual understanding of Americans and American public opinion.

He was said to have insisted at the beginning of the war that his country refrain from any propaganda in the United States and instead present only the facts of the war.

British censorship of American mail and shipping difficulties resulting from the blockade raised fresh problems with the United States in which the ambassador was credited with adroit handling.

Informal and looking more like a middle western business man than a British ambassador, Lord Lothian cut through diplomatic red tape in favor of direct discussion with President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and other officials on many problems.

WAS A BACHELOR

The ambassador was a bachelor.

Nerville Butler, counselor of the embassy, will be in charge of British affairs until a new ambassador is appointed.

The six-foot envoy who succeeded Sir Ronald Lindsay as the British ambassador here, had won a high place in the esteem of members of the diplomatic set.

As early as 1916 he took an important place in the British government. In that year he became secretary to Prime Minister Lloyd George. He was known as Lloyd George's "Col. House," and was credited with having written many sections of the Versailles Treaty.

He received his title in 1930 on the death of a cousin. Besides being the Marquess of Lothian, he is Lord Newbattle, Earl of Lothian, Baron Jedburgh, Earl of Ancrum, Baron Kerr of Nisbet, Baron Long-Newton and Dolphingston, Viscount of Brien, Baron Kerr of Newbattle and Baron Ker.

Lord Lothian was a Christian Scientist and had written much about that faith.

When he arrived here in August, 1939, it was his 15th journey to the United States. As secretary to the Rhodes Trust, he had visited 41 of the states and prided himself on knowing something about American public opinion.

SOUGHT U. S. AID

Lord Lothian once believed that Adolf Hitler was "earnestly" desirous of peace, and he advocated an Anglo-German pact. He even suggested that Germany's colonies be restored to her. Then came Munich and Hitler's seizure, first of the Sudeteland, and then of all of Czechoslovakia. From that time on Lothian was convinced that the only way to deal with Hitler and Mussolini was through superior power.

Lord Lothian returned only recently from a visit in London and set off public discussion of financial aid to Great Britain by declaring that country's finances were running low.

Lothian's Post to Windsor?

LONDON, Dec. 12 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor, now a visitor in Miami, Fla., was mentioned as a posible successor to the Marquess of Lothian as British ambassador to the United States today as London grieved over the sudden death of Britain's envoy to Washington.

The first shock over Lothian's passing, described here as a "grievous loss," was followed by a welter of speculation as to his probable successor.

The totally unexpected situation resulting from the ambassador's death sent British officialdom into a "flat spin," and observers received the impression that the government was at a loss to find someone of "sufficient stature" to replace him.

Diplomatic circles were flooded with suggestions. In addition to the Duke of Windsor, Lord Beaverbrook, newspaper publisher and now minister for aviation production in the war cabinet, was mentioned. Some commentators favored Anthony Eden, war minister; Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information; former Premier David Lloyd George and Sir Robert Van Sittart, permanent under-secretary for foreign affairs.

The choice of a new ambassador is obviously limited and provides Prime Minister Winston Churchill with a difficult problem, as the new envoy must not only be a strong personality, but one who is attractive to American eyes.

Authoritative circles expressed hope that President Roosevelt would soon appoint a strong ambassador to London to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy to ensure "continuity of policy" despite the huge gap left by Lothian's passing.

$3,010,800 Bid For 15 U. S. Ships

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (INS)—British shipping interests today offered $3,010,800 for 15 ships of the Maritime Commission's laid up merchant fleet. The bid was placed by the J. H. Winchester & Co., New York, acting on behalf of a group of British controlled carriers.

Black Cat Crossed Path Of Lothian on F.D. Visit

A black cat—reputed harbinger of ill fortune—crossed the path of Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, on one of his early visits to the White House, the envoy's sudden death recalled today.

Where the cat came from remained a mystery. But the animal appeared mysteriously and dogged the ambassador's footsteps to and from President Roosevelt's executive offices.

When the cat confronted him as he prepared to leave the White House, Lord Lothian picked it up and posed for a news photo, holding the scrawny black tabby in his arms.

"Black cats bring peace, not bad luck, we believe in England," he commented.

Newspapermen named the cat "Crisis" after its counterpart, the black cat popularly suposed to visit 10 Downing st., London, at times of crises in British and European affairs.

MONEY TO LOAN

DON'T GET A LOAN

UNTIL YOU READ THIS TABLE

You can borrow $100 if you can pay back $6.41 a month

You can get a personal loan of $20 to $300 at Household Finance at rates substantially below the lawful maximum—if you can repay in small monthly installments

Payments to fit your purse

You may choose the most convenient repayment plan from the table below. Suppose that you need $100 and you can readily repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the [illegible] and payment plans [illegible]. (Loans also [illegible] other amounts and [illegible]) Payments in [illegible] everything. [illegible] rate of 2½% per [illegible] of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 is less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law and is the same to everyone.

Simple to borrow

We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. And you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the papers with you.

Life and Adventures of Santa Claus

The Story So Far:

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Nicholas lived with his father, mother and baby sister in a little village on the shores of the Baltic Sea.

Nicholas loved his sister, whose name was Katje. He cared for her tenderly and carved wooden dolls for her amusement.

One day Baby Katje became very ill. Father was at sea with the other fishermen of the town. Nicholas and his mother watched over the little, feverish form in the cradle.

When Katje seemed worse, Nicholas' mother went out into the stormy night to get the doctor. Long hours Nicholas watched. Finally the baby's brow was less hot. Soon it was cool. Then it was cold.

Next morning the village folk found Nicholas weeping beside his dead sister. They knew that his father had been drowned during the night and his mother killed by a falling tree.

What to do with Nicholas, now an orphan, was a problem. At length, the good people solved it by agreeing to keep him for a year at each of their homes.

The first to care for Nicholas was a family named Bavran. They were so kind to him that the year slipped by like a happy dream.

As the day came to leave and go to another family Nicholas wanted to do something to show his gratitude to the Bavrans. He remembered how his sister loved the dolls he used to make. So he made dolls and boats and other toys and gave them to the Bavran children.

He was sad when he said goodbye and departed to live for twelve long months with the family of the village ropemaker, but his heart was comforted by the thought of the happiness he had left behind him.

One day all the boys in the village were invited to enter a sled race. Everyone wanted to see Nicholas win, and he did. But his joy was short-lived. The neighborhood's eccentric wood-carver met him and said, "You're coming to live with me now." The house was poorer and the wood-carver meaner than Nicholas had feared. But, as months passed, the old man became gentler and kinder.

Now Continue:

By Julie Lane

NICHOLAS wasn't afraid of him any more; he went over and put his pitying young hands on the old shoulders. "I'll be your son, master; I won't leave you," he whispered.

Marsden lifted his head, and looked at the strong young face with the kind blue eyes bent over him. "You're a good lad, Nicholas. And," he added almost shyly for it wasn't easy for a harsh man to change so quickly, "I think I'd like to help you with some of those little things you make. We'll make them together these long winter evenings, eh, shall we, Nicholas? So you can go around next Christmas Day in that fine sled of yours. Then you won't leave me alone again, will you, lad?"

He grasped Nicholas' arm almost roughly, then a peaceful expression crept into the lonely old face as the boy answered simply, "No, master, I'll stay here with you just as long as you want me."

So every winter evening saw two heads bent over the work-bench—a gray head with thick, shaggy hair, and the smooth yellow head of the boy. They worked feverishly during the weeks preceding Christmas; and with the old man helping with the carving, Nicholas was able to add delicate little touches to the toys which made them far more handsome than any he had ever made before.

He painted the dolls' faces so that their eyes were as blue and their cheeks and lips were as rosy as the little girls who would soon clasp them in their arms; the little chairs and tables were stained with the same soft colors that Marsden used on his own products; the little boys' sleighs and boats and animals were shiny with bright new paints—red and yellow and green.

So, two nights before Christmas, everything was finished—a toy for every child in the village was packed in the sled with the steel runners; yet Nicholas and the old man were still working at the bench.

This time they were desperately trying to finish a chest which had been ordered by a wealthy woman in the next village, 20 miles away. She had said definitely that she wanted the chest finished in time for Christmas Day, because she was giving it to her daughter as a betrothal gift and the feast was to be celebrated then.

Marsden and Nicholas worked feverishly most of that night and the following day, and there still remained a few little finishing touches, and here it was Christmas eve. Marsden could have it done in time to be delivered tomorrow, but of course Nicholas would have to borrow the nearest neighbor's horse and drive over with the chest on Christmas Day itself—the day when he had planned to make his tour of the village with his gifts, to show the children that he had not forgotten them, even though they had not seen much of him during the past year.

NICHOLAS AGREES

"I'm sorry, Nicholas," said old Marsden. "I'd go myself, but I'm not so strong as I used to be, and it's an all-day trip—20 miles over, then you'll have to wait several hours to rest the horse, and 20 miles back. And with the snow not crusted, it'll be hard going."

Nicholas was sitting in front of the fire, leaning on his elbows, staring thoughtfully into the flames.

"If she only didn't want the chest tomorrow for sure," he said. "And if we had only finished it before today, I could have delivered it sooner, and had plenty of time tomorrow."

"Well," answered his master, "we did promise it, and it has to be delivered. Now the toys weren't promised . . ."

"No, but I always have given them," interrupted Nicholas.

"I was just going to say, lad, that they weren't promised for Christmas DAY. Now, you know that little children go to bed early. Why can't you . . ."

"Oh, I understand," cried Nicholas, leaping from his chair. "I deliver the gifts tonight, Christmas Eve, after the children have gone to bed, and when they wake up tomorrow morning, they'll find them there, at their doors! Oh, master, that's a wonderful idea! Why, it's even better than before. I never did like the idea of walking up to a house in broad daylight and hearing folks thank me and everything. What time is it, quick? Eleven o'clock! I'll have to hurry. Where's my list? Where's my sled?"

So the two rushed around and finally got the sled out in the yard. Nicholas bundled himself up in his close-fitting hat shaped like a stocking, his long belted tunic coat edged with fur, his black leggings and heavy boots, pulled on his mittens, and was off through the snow, dragging the toy-laden sled behind him.

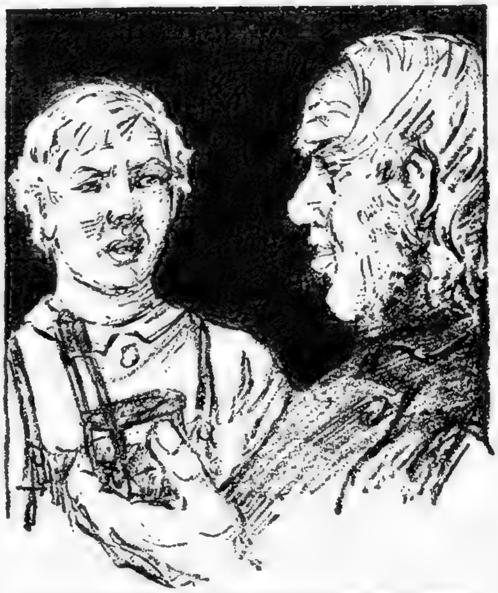
Christmas Eve in the village—a bright winter moon shining in the star-filled sky; glistening white snow banked everywhere—on the roads, on the roof-tops, on the fences, and in the doorways; houses darkened and the inmates all sleeping soundly; not a soul stirring in the streets but one figure, which stole silently from door to door, leaving a pile of tiny objects every place he stopped, until there was nothing left in the bottom of the sled.

It was 3 o'clock on Christmas morning when Nicholas turned away from the last doorway, his sled lighter to pull, his feet tired from dragging through the heavy snow, but happy that it was Christmas morning and he had once more kept his unspoken promise to the children.

Nicholas did not leave the wood-carver on Christmas Day, or the next year, or the next. He stayed on in the little cottage, which was now bright and clean, and a happy dwelling for two happy people.

For old Marsden had forgotten his grouch in the daily association with Nicholas' sunny disposition; he cheerfully taught Nicholas all he knew of his difficult trade, so that as the boy grew in years and strength, his knowledge of wood-carving soon matched that of his old master.

Marsden bought a horse and sleigh for the trips outside of town, which were also used by Nicholas on his Christmas Eve visits to the children in the village. For although the little ones he had played with had grown up and stopped playing with toys, there were new babies in every household every year, and each one was taught to expect from Nicholas, the wood-carver, a little toy on Christmas morning.



The old wood-carver and Nicholas worked together as father and son.

TWO STRANGERS

One bright summer morning, Nicholas was sitting on a bench outside the cottage door, carving away at a half-finished chair leg and whistling cheerfully as he worked. He was then 20 years old, a tall young man, the yellow hair a little darker, but with the same blue eyes, rosy cheeks, and heady smile. He stopped his work to listen to the birds singing in the trees overhead and to enjoy the warm sunlight shining down on him. Suddenly two children ran up the path leading to the cottage door, bursting with news.

"Nicholas," one of them panted, "Nicholas, there are two men in the village who have been asking where old Mardsen lives. They are on their way here now. Who do you suppose they are? They said . . ."

"Hush," said the other child, "here they are now."

Two men, about 10 or 15 years older than Nicholas, were coming slowly up the path. They seemed surprised to see him working at the bench, and one of them spoke.

"Excuse me, but they told us in the village that we would find Bertran Marsden here. If we have made a mistake . . ."

"No," answered Nicholas, "this is Bertran Marsden's cottage. I am only his apprentice. I'll call him. He has a nap every afternoon now. You see, he's getting rather old."

The two men looked at each to the other with puzzled eyes.

"Yes, he must be old now. Don't disturb him. We'll come back."

"No, here he is now," said Nicholas.

Marsden had appeared in the doorway and was looking from one to the other with puzzled eyes.

Who are the men looking for Marsden? What will happen to Nicholas? Be sure to read tomorrow's chapter of "The Life and Adventures of Santa Claus."

Mata Hari's Daughter

By Maurice Dekobra and Leyla Georgie

BRINDA did not have to be told that she had won. A look at Vaslav's face told it all. Then, as a pistol appeared by magic in his hand, she realized she might have dared too much.

But, at the same moment, a hard British fist struck the jaw of the Prince, and he staggered back, the weapon falling from his hand.

"Get up, you rotten blighter!" ordered the voice of Dick Malden. "Get up so I can smash you again!"

The spotlight which had followed Brinda from the balcony since she entered suddenly went off. Brinda could see some kind of a struggle going on in the balcony. Then, through the theater, rang the authoritative voice of Sir John Sanderson

"Attention! I am speaking for the intelligence office. All members of the audience will remain seated. No one will be permitted to leave until certain precautionary measures have been taken to apprehend enemy agents known to be present. That is all."

The audience froze into immobility. With dazed eyes the startled spectators watched the curtain descend. But stirring drama continued behind it.

Recovering from Dick's blow, Vaslav rose swiftly to his feet. Dick aimed another blow at him. But this time Vaslav leaped aside.

Moving with lightning swiftness, he recovered the gun. He held it loosely in his hand, swinging it so that the muzzle threatened not only Dick but the other male members of the ballet, who were pressing curiously forward, their gorgeous costumes and painted cheeks strangely incongruous in this setting of violence and danger.

VASLAV'S EXIT

"I regret," said Vaslav, sneering, "that I have no time to accept your invitation, Lieut. Malden. On some other occasion I shall be more than happy to return your courtesy—with interest!" A reckless, insolent smile curved his lips. He bowed to Brinda. "I had no thought of shooting you, my beautiful . . . I could not have pulled the trigger. I only hoped to halt you. But you were too quick for me—too clever. Alas, my premiere danseuse, I only love you more—if possible." With his free hand he blew her a kiss. Then, lightly twitching the muzzle of the automatic from side to side, he backed carefully away, the smile still on his lips.

As he reached the short flight of steps leading to the stage door, and thence to the outer world of freedom, he stopped. The pistol became still, its muzzle centered on Dick.

"On second thought, Lieutenant," Vaslav said softly, "I don't think I shall wait for that future opportunity. Instead, I am going to kill you now."

Brinda screamed.

"No!" she cried, and then threw herself in front of Malden.

Vaslav hesitated. An expression of pain twisted his mouth.

"Ah!" he said softly, "so it is that way! You are a very lucky fellow, Lieut. Malden. But since I cannot kill you at the moment, let me give you a parting bit of advice: the next time, be more careful to whom you entrust the plans for your Z-ray. Plans which through your carelessness I shall now take with me, and place in better hands. Goodby, lucky Lieut. Malden!"

Then suddenly, his expression changed. His hands rose slowly in the air, the pistol clattered to the floor

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

AL McCOY, looking the part of physical perfection and filled with confidence in his ability to beat Joe Louis at the Garden on next Monday night, punched away at Tony Adams of Newark in a lively workout at Kelley & Hayes Gym.

"I have had more boxing getting ready for Louis than I have had for any previous bout," said McCoy. "I can hit a dime with my punches. My timing is that sharp.

"Timing is as important in boxing as in baseball, golf or in any other sport.

"I did my preliminary training at Lou Stillman's Gym in New York as I could get better sparring partners in New York than in Boston. I had half a dozen husky heavyweights who boxed eight to ten rounds a day with me.

"I shall continue to do plenty of work now that I am back in Boston. You may be assured it will be a fighting McCoy who will face Louis on Monday night.

"I am not afraid of the champion, and I honestly think I can beat him. I won't go into the ring with two strikes on me as has been true of so many of Louis' opponents.

"I have fought them all from the days when I was a featherweight in Maine until I smashed my way into the heavyweight division. I have never been afraid of anyone that walked on two feet.

"Personally I think Louis is slow mentally, only a fair boxer, and he has been successful on account of the poor caliber of his opponents.

"When Louis makes a mistake in the ring he stumbles around like an amateur and has to get back into the first boxing position. He doesn't make a quick recovery after a blunder."

Says Louis Is Hard Puncher

McCOY DECLARED he considered Louis a hard rather than a great puncher.

"Louis doesn't knock his opponent out with a single punch like Dempsey used to do," said McCoy. "Joe hits hard, but he isn't a paralyzing socker. I shall be able to take his Sunday wallop and come back fighting.

"I think that if Louis and myself were each to hit a machine that would register the power of our blows, I would get a higher rating than the champion. Fortunately, I can hit with either hand. In the past I have dropped opponents with left hooks as well as with right hand punches.

"Most of Louis' opponents have been one handed fighters. Joe only had to worry about getting nailed by a left hook or a right hand smash. Next Monday night Louis had better keep both eyes open or he will get chilled."

McCoy did not talk in a boastful manner. He looks upon Louis as just another opponent he has to beat.

"Louis will probably be an overwhelming favorite," said McCoy, "but that isn't worrying me. He will be the one carrying the mental burden. You may think I'm crazy for saying it, but I'm going to win. I feel it inside of me."

McCoy will continue to work out at Kelley & Hayes' Gym for the remainder of the week.

With McCoy in town and ready for the battle of his career Louis decided to work every day this week at Johnny Buckley's Gym on Friend street. Louis cannot afford to take any more days off. He has a million dollars at stake on Monday night.

Sam Smith and Dez Wadsworth

SAM SMITH and C. Desmond (Dez) Wadsworth will bring to the Boxing Commission a wealth of sports experience. While neither Smith nor Wadsworth have been closely identified with the boxing game, each of them is enthusiastic about the ring sport and should not experience any difficulty in adapting themselves to their new duties.

Boxing has been conducted well by the Boxing Commission since the sport was first legalized during the days following the World War when Calvin Coolidge was Governor.

George LaPlante, Peter Carr and Eugene McSweeney have been in charge of the State's interest in boxing in recent years, and have done everything possible to help the condition of the sport. Carr died recently, while LaPlante's term has expired.

LaPlante will remain on the Commission until the appointments of Smith and Wadsworth have been approved by the Governor's Coun-

Wilson's Comeback Praised by Scribes

Six times this fall 40-year-old Jimmy Wilson strapped himself up with adhesive tape, buckled on his harness and ambled out on the field to do the catching for the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series.

For six games he handled the Reds' pitchers flawlessly, batted at a .353 clip and climaxed that startling performance by getting the only stolen base of the series.

That was hailed today as the year's outstanding competitive comeback in an Associated Press poll of 78 sports editors from coast to coast. Twenty-three put the new Chicago Cub manager at the head of the list. He got 102 points on a 3-2-1 scoring basis.

Wilson qualified on all counts under the heading of "Comebacks In Individual Competition." The same doesn't apply to the runner-up, Coach Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford, who was only six points back.

SHAUGHNESSY HONORED

Undoubtedly Stanford's football team made a fine comeback under Shaughnessy, and undoubtedly the record of the 1940 Shaughnessy Stanford team was far better than that of the 1939 Shaughnessy Chicago team.

Yet Shaughnessy hardly could be termed a competing athlete, nor did he make an actual comeback, since even in his poorest years at Chicago there wasn't any doubt of his ability as a coach.

ABSENCE OF PICS' ACES HURT TEAM ON ROAD

By SAM BROGNA

Boston's disappointing Olympics, winners of but two games out of 14 played in Eastern Amateur League competition, return to their home rink Saturday night for the first time in over two weeks.

Furnishing the opposition at the old depot will be the New York Rovers, another hard luck team that has been finding the going a bit rough of late. And on the Sabbath afternoon, the Pics face the River Vale Skeeters which handed the Olympics their 11th loss 7 to 2 last night and imbedded them deeper in the celler.

Of the 14 games played, the best Coach Hago Harrington's outfit could do was defeat the Atlantic City Sea Gulls and the Rovers. The Sea Gulls' win on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24, snapped their four-game losing streak. The Rovers' win took place last Sunday at Madison Square Garden, but only after the Pics had dropped six in a row.

PLAY IN ATLANTIC CITY

Since leaving the Garden on Thanksgiving night after a trouncing by the Rovers, the Olympics have been on the road, playing in every city that represents the league. Tonight's contest against Atlantic City will be their seventh.

Coach Harrington who has been having more than his share of troubles, will be bothered again tonight in Atlantic City. Against the River Vale Skeeters last night he was forced to ice a team minus the services of his three right wings, Paul Guibord, Danny Sullivan and Bob Jeremiah.

This trio which incidentally has been playing outstanding hockey, was forced to miss the trip because of business. Guibord and Jeremiah are the two leading score makers of the club.

GUIBORD TOP SCORER

Paul heads the list with 11 points—four goals and seven assists. Bob is the leading score getter with seven.

When they take to the ice Saturday night, a number of new faces will be in the lineup. The new comers are Harry Martin, hustling defenseman from New York, and Mid Belland, smooth-skating wing from Lewiston, Me.

Of the two, Martin has proved to be the tougher and the one most likely to become a favorite here in the Hub. He weighs less than any other of the Boston blue liners, yet he hits harder than any of them.

Shooters Advised to Use Peep Sights in Practice

Participants in the forthcoming William Randolph Hearst Citizen's Marksmanship Competition would find it paying dividends in accuracy to follow strictly along the lines of instructions on "aiming and sighting" published in the National Rifle Association rula book.

At the request of several riflemen we reprint this section of the N. R. A. Rule Book, as follows:

The rifleman looks through or over his sights at the targets. In target practice, peep sights should be used exclusively, because more accurate shooting can be done with this type of sight than with the open sight. Using the peep sight, the top of the front sight is brought up to the center of the peep, the bull's-eye appearing to rest on the top of the front sight.

If you attempt to hold the front sight in the center of the black bull's-eye it will tend to "fade out" and you will find yourself unable to always hold in the same place.

The rear sight may be likened to a hole in a fence. The nearer your eye to a knot-hole the better. You can see what's on the other side of the fence. The same thing is true in aiming a rifle. You are not seriously concerned about the hole in the rear sight, once you find it, but what is beyond, and you focus your eye on the bull's-eye. When using the open sight the front should be held parallel with the top of the rear sight.

Many of the modern target rifles are also equipped with a peep or aperture type of front sight. Using this sight equipment simply encircle the bull's-eye so that there is an even line of light around the outer edge of the bull's-eye and the inner edge of the aperture.

Attention to such important detail will make a major difference in the Hearst Rifle Shoot. The expert misses no opportunity to improve his accuracy.

MIAMI OPEN WINNER MUST BE SUPERMAN

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP)—The winner of the $10,000 Miami Open starting today will fit Fred Corcoran's specifications for a super golfer.

To qualify for that title, in the opinion of the Professional Golfers' Ass'n tournament bureau manager, a player must:

Drive like Jimmy Thompson or Sam Snead.

Hit long wood shots like Ben Hogan and Ed Oliver.

Use a spoon with the proficiency of Paul Runyan.

Play an all-around iron game like Tommy Armour, Henry Picard or Byron Nelson.

Putt like Horton Smith.

"That's just what the winner will have to do," Corcoran said. "Anybody playing like that over the Miami Springs course will card a 270 for the 72 holes—and that's about the score it will take to lift top money."

He added that any one of 15 players among the field of more than 200 is a super-golfer when he is "hot"—naming Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Nelson, Picard, Snead, Ed Oliver, Harold McSpaden, Craig Wood, Clayton Heafner, Revolta, Sarazen, Smith, Runyan, Jimmy Hines and Jimmy Thomson.

"They can do everything well," the tournament arranger explained. "There are a 150 others who can do most of the strokes, but are lacking in some respect.

"A super-golfer must have everything."

Because of a string of sub-par practice rounds, McSpaden was the favorite to walk off with first prize of $2500 after the fourth 18-hole round Sunday afternoon. The slender professional knocked four strokes off par with a sparkling 66 yesterday.

Dick Chapman, the national champion, headed the list of amateurs, which included a pair of baseball players—Paul Derringer and Paul Waner—and Jim Ferrier, the Australian title-holder.

Two Argentine pros, Martin Pose and Eduardo Blasi, traveled 7000 miles to play.

Snead fired a 271 to win last year.

YALE SEXTET BELTS B. U.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Dec. 12 (AP)—Yale overwhelmed Boston University, 12-0, in the first game of its hockey season.

Roger Hazen and Jim Carton of the defending Quadrangular League champions shared the scoring honors, the former caging three goals and the latter one with three assists.

B. C. Six May Lose Mee for Opener

OUT TO EQUAL GRID RECORD

Boston College's power-laden hockey team may be without the services of defenseman Bobby Mee when it opens its season against Yale Saturday night at New Haven. That's bad news for Boston College.

Mee, a junior letterman from Arlington, whom many of the local ice experts consider the best defenseman in college hockey, is nursing a knee injury similar to the hurt which kept Footballer Gene Goodreault out of the grid team's last two games.

Bob sustained the injury when he twisted his knee in practice last week. At the time of the accident the injury didn't appear serious, but at the ice Eagles' final pre-game practice session he was hardly able to skate. Discouraged by the handicap, the Arlington boy this morning was wondering if he'd even make the trip to New Haven.

LOADED WITH VETS

If Mee isn't ready to face the Ivy League Elis, Boston College may miss the bus in a game which Coach John "Shooks" Kelley terms the "most important B. C. hockey game of the last 15 years." Mee means that much to the Eagle six.

With the exception of the Arlington junior the Boston College squad, sprinkled from end to end with veteran material, is ready for its opening and just possibly its most important clash of the new season.

Capt. Johnny Pryor will lead a six, made up of five lettermen (if Mee is ready) and one sophomore against the Eli. If Mee isn't in shape at whistle time Saturday, Joe Maguire, senior letterman, or Larry Houle, junior letter winner, will play right defense for the Kelleys.

SOPH ON DEFENSE

Ray Chaisson and Al Dumond, high scorers of the sextet which copped the New England College championship last winter, will team with Capt. Pryor on the first line. Bill McLaughlin, promising 180 pound sophomore from Stoneham, will play left defense. Hugh Sharkey, another junior letter winner will be in the goal.

Wally Boudreau, Cambridge sophomore, who is presently shuttling between football and hockey, and will go to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl game with the grid squad, will take time out from his quarterbacking chores to center a powerful second line against the Elis. Walter, who is a brother of Jimmy Boudreau, junior letter winner, will team with Ralph Powers and Larry Babine, fast-skating sophomore.

If Boston College can tip Yale, the Chestnut Hill ice team may be able to scale heights comparative to the ones which the championship football squad has conquered. Saturday's clash at New Haven is to the icemen what the Tulane game earlier in the year at New Orleans was to the gridders.

78 Frosh Report For N. U. Hockey

A club of 78 freshmen hockey candidates reported to Coach Herb Gallagher at the Arena this morning. Several former high school stars are included in the group.

Standout among the goal tenders was Bill Shannon, former Watertown High ace, who was a member of the Bay State All-Stars last year. Paul Soma and Bob Otenti of Framingham and Tom White of Brookline were headliners among the defense men.

Walter Hurley, a main-stay on Newton High's Greater Boston League Championship last year, aided the forward line candidates. Frank Alward, former captain at Dedham High and his high school team mate, John Lally, also were included in the first group.

Other high school names in hockey included Dick Connor and Bob Maker of Framingham and Perry McRobert of Natick. The Huskie Cubs will practice with the varsity at the Arena.

Bruins Bring Up Two New Rookies for Test

Manager Art Ross of the Bruins has ordered Gordon Bruce, left wing, and Terry Reardon, center, both of the Hershey team of the American Hockey League, to report for Bruins practice at the Garden this afternoon.

Decision to call up the two Bruins rookies, both 21 years of age, was made by Ross after Bruins' 6-2 win over the Rangers on Tuesday night and was occasioned in some respect by the fractured nose suffered by left winger Herb Cain which will keep him out of play for about ten days.

PLANS DOUBTFUL

The move is the first that Ross has made to change his "stand pat" policy so far as the Bruins are concerned. Ross explained his recall of Ross and Reardon by the following remarks

"I have not seen either player since the Bruins started this season. We have a week of practice coming up and it is as good a time as any for me to look them over. Naturally, I don't want to ruin the Hershey team by taking two of their best forwards away from them, and I can't say now whether Bruce and Reardon will stay up, and if so what will be done about Hershey. My present plans are to play Bruce at left wing in the third line against the Toronto Leafs on Tuesday. We will need every bit of strength we have to stop that fine Toronto team."

FIRST TIME FOR BRUCE

Gordie Bruce has never played in Boston. He is 21 years old, weighs 167 pounds and is 5 feet 10 inches tall. Bruce turned professional in 1939 after having played two years of amateur hockey. During his last year at Glebe with the Glebe Collegiates in the Ottawa High School League he scored 15 goals and 13 assists. He played with Sudbury Wolves in the N. O. H. A. in 1937-38 and had 16 goals and 14 assists; with the North Bay Trappers in 1938-39 with 51 points, 27 goals and 24 assists. Playing his first year with Hershey in 1939-40 he has 11 goals and 9 assists. This year, the latest scoring statistics of the American League, not including games last week, gave him 8 goals and 3 assists.

TERRY PRO THREE YEARS

Terry Reardon has played in Boston for two brief periods as a member of the Bruins. A year ago he played center for the Bruins in the final playoff game with Rangers in New York, capturing the admiration of the Boston followers by his smart and aggressive play.

Terry is playing his third year of professional hockey. He turned pro in 1938 playing with the Hershey Bears when he got 9 goals and 20 assists. A year ago he had 13 goals and 24 assists over the regular season and scored four goals for Hershey in the playoffs. He is a right hand shot.

Another Sanford Goes Into Action

Another member of the famous Sanford athletic family will swing into action for Medford Saturday, when the Mystic hockey team faces off against Belmont in the Garden in the Greater Boston Hockey League opener.

He is Phil, Jr., and is holding down the center berth on the first line. His father is remembered as one of Medford's best all-around athletes, starring in both hockey and baseball, and brother Chet capped four years playing baseball for the Blue and White by starring in college and professional ranks.

Young Phil packs a hard left hand shot and is rated by his coach as one of the smartest play makers around opposing nets in the Greater Boston League.

GRID COACHES DUST OFF 'T' MODELS

Football coaches everywhere are jostling each other in a mad rush to hop on the T-formation bandwagon.

The oldest, most antiquated offensive formation of the gridiron, one outmoded and tossed in the discard decades ago, has been prettied up and lo!—it becomes the sensation of the 1940 season.

Gridiron Row is all agog over the T-formation, and when next fall's pigskin warriors assemble for the national football campaign, it is certain that the old business of the quarterback taking the ball direct from center and feeding it to his backfield mates as the latter reach full flight will be generally in practice.

STANFORD'S SUCCESS

All this T-formation business is the aftermath of the notable successes achieved with it by Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford and George Halas of the Chicago (po) Bears.

Because Shaughnessy resurrected the old "T" and made it work, a season which loomed as dismal for Stanford proved to be a triumphal procession, so that the Cardinals were a sure-fire bet to make the Rose Bowl from mid-season on.

And because Shaugnessy had faith in an old football principle of offense, he became the miracle coach of the year, and only today was voted second best "comeback athlete of the year," next to Jimmy Wilson.

It was Halas, however, who made disciples of new-fangled ideas sit up and take notice. When his Bears ran riot through the Washington Redskins to the unprecedented tune of 73-0 last Cunday the rush was on.

B. C. USES VARIATION

Boston College lines up somewhat along the lines of the "T." But actually there is a distinct difference. Quarterback Hank Toczylowski takes his position behind guard rather than center, and the pivotman passes direct to the ball carrier.

An indication of the trend towards the "T" for the coming year is a visit planned by Jimmy Conzelman, coach of the Chicago Cardinals, to Auburn next spring.

There he will sit down with Coach Jack Meagher and attempt to incorporate "T" plays and the famous Notre Dame formation into the one system.

College football coaches are forever scouting each other, eternally seeking new ideas.

Let one come up with a matter of offense or defense which works and soon the same system will be employed on gridirons thousands of miles apart.

THERE'S NOTHING NEW

That there's nothing new under the sun was never better proved than the remarkable revival of the T-formation.

Both Halas and Shaughnessy were quick to see that the conditions of defense which made the old "T" workable had been removed. In the old days when the "T" was standard almost everywhere, it's adaptability was broken down because of the usual seven-man line.

There was tremendous power generated from it. But backs had to be outstanding, and a quarterback perforce had to be an artist at handling the bal.

Eventually the formation lost its effectiveness because its use was confined mostly to play directed betwen the opposing tackles.

It lacked strength to the outside

BOB EDGE MAYOR TOBIN FRANK LEAHY FR. GALLAGHER

Tom Harmon Will Turn Pro, Says Grange

be out there on the sidelines watching.

"And next fall he'll get the urge to go out and throw the ball around. And then he'll be lost."

Anyway, Grange said, Harmon should do the thing he knows how to do best, "and he knows plenty of football."

The Michigan All-America back can make more money playing football than doing anything else, Grange said, and he ought to cash in.

"While he won't get the $25,000 he's asking," Red said, "he might be able to get a two-year contract at $15,000 per season, and my advice to Tom would be 'take it.'

"There are plenty of sports broadcasters, and few of them are making $15,000 for a three-month season (Harmon has stated he prefers a job as a radio announcer to a pro football career). And Tom doesn't know he could hold down a radio job. But he should know he can hold down a football job on any man's team."

EAGLES PRESENTED LAMBERT TROPHY

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Boston College Eagles can, if they wish, take along more than their clippings when they go to New Orleans to face Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

Last night they received substantial proof of their prowess in the form of the Lambert Trophy, a handsome piece emblematic of the unofficial eastern football championship.

The trophy, won last year by Cornell, was presented to the school and to Coach Frank Leahy at a banquet attended by scores of notables of the sports world.

The award is made by the Lambert Brothers, Henry and Victor, in memory of their father.

Leahy, whose Eagles have lost only one regular season game out of 20 they have played since he took charge two years ago, heard himself hailed as one of the giants of his profession.

Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston came down for the presentation.

Francis Wallace, football writer and novelist, "explained" Leahy's quick success as a head coach by the fact that Leahy broke a leg in his last season at Notre Dame and was unable to play.

This was Knute Rockne's last year as coach of the Irish, Wallace recalled, and he was laid up in the hospital a good bit of the time, himself, with an ailing leg.

So, with time heavy on his hands, the "Rock" regaled Leahy for hours about the fine points of coaching, and Leahy must have listened attentively.

300,000 TO SIT IN AT BOWLS

By International News Service

Advance sales indicate today that some 300,000 football fans will pay close to $1,000,000 to see five bowl games and the East-West Shriners game on New Year's Day.

This comes under the head of big business and, budgets for college sports being what they are, it is not surprising that every graduate manager in the country has his eye on a Bowl bid each fall.

The Rose Bowl, of course, is the most lucrative of the lot. It seems certain that at least 90,000 will pay around $300,000 to see Nebraska play Stanford at Pasadena.

Each college will get about $100,000, and many a school runs its entire sports program for the year on a smaller sum.

40,000 AT MIAMI

San Franciscans, 60,000 strong, will lay out at least $150,000 for their East-West charity game.

Fordham and Texas Aggies will play to 45,000 and more than $100,000 in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

The unbeaten behemoths from Boston College and Tennessee will do their stuff in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, and 55,000 will spend at least $125,000 for this one.

The Orange Bowl in Miami will draw a capacity crowd of 40,000, who will be only too glad to pay perhaps $80,000 to see Georgetown clash with Mississippi State.

And out in El Paso's Sun Bowl 15,000 will go for at least $25,000 to watch Temple play Western Reserve.

The Broadway bookies today are offering the following odds on each of these games:

STANFORD 7 TO 5

Stanford is 7 to 5 favorite over Nebraska. Texas Aggies are 8 to 5 over Fordham. Boston College and Tennessee are quoted at 4 to 5 and pick 'em. Temple is 7 to 5 over Western Reserve. Georgetown is 6 to 5 over Mississippi State. And the East is 9 to 5 over the West in the Shriners' game.

The bookies may not be out of line on these odds, but it would not be at all surprising to see the less favored team win.

That they themselves think the games are a tossup is indicated by the 5 to 1 odds they are offering that you cannot pick three winners in the six games, ties to count against you.

The one sure bet is that the fans are going to see a great football game no matter which bowl they enter.

Belloise Sees K. O.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (INS)—Whether youth or age profits most by a tough fight may be demonstrated in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when the veteran Ken Overlin once more lays his middleweight title on the line in a 15-round battle with young Steve Belloise.

You may recall that in their last meeting Overlin eked out a very narrow decision, but before doing so Belloise had the champion on the deck and almost out.

"This time," said the Bronx belter today, "Overlin won't get away from me. I'll stop him sure. If I hadn't been over anxious I'd have finished him last time

FIRST ROUTE FIGHT

"That was my first 15-round fight. In fact, it was the first time I ever had to travel more than eight rounds and I wasn't quite sure that I could go the route. Now I know that I can go the distance better than Overlin. Watch me take him this trip."

The foregoing quotation was faithfully reported to Overlin, who laughed, and remarked:

"Young fellows certainly are cocky, aren't they? Well, I don't blame him. I was the same way myself when I was a kid. But don't think for one minute the old man is going to let the kid tag him with a sucker right hand again as he did last time.

"I know he's a terrific puncher. He convinced me of that in a hurry. But I think I've learned all he's got, and this time I figure to maneuver him around and get the duke."

ADMITS LACK OF PUNCH

Then he has no hope of stopping the kid?

"I should say not!" the champion exclaimed. "I never stopped anybody who didn't have a glass jaw, and this kid can take it."

Strangely enough, ringside veterans look at the fight in the same way. Some think Belloise's superior punching and youth will bring him the title. Others think Overlin will outsmart the youngster.

The gamblers have made Overlin a 6 to 5 choice, but declare they would not be surprised if the price is even money at bell-time.

West End House Faces Tough Foe

The undefeated West End House expects its toughest opposition of the season to date when it plays the famous West New York Club at the Blossom st. gym Saturday night.

The Mikola A. C. of New York, which lost in the last few minutes of play at the West End House last Saturday, characterized the West New York team as one of the outstanding basketball teams in the Metropolitan district.

CONN PLANS TO SCOUT LOUIS, M'COY

"CHRISTMAS GREETINGS"—Al McCoy promises to give Joe Louis nothing but leather for Christmas and shows a sample of gift. "This is all he'll see Monday," Al forecasts.

Billy Conn, who has practically abandoned his light heavyweight realm and is looking for the heavyweight crown, will climb through the ropes at the Garden next Monday and challenge the winner of the Joe Louis-Al McCoy 15-round championship battle to a fist fight.

Conn wired Matchmaker Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. to save him a seat down front because he's coming here to shout a challenge and to "scout" both McCoy and Louis. Conn, incidentally, is one who does not think the Brown Bomber has any pop-over in McCoy.

CONN SEEKS LOUIS BOUT

Conn is quoted as stating recently that McCoy gave him plenty of trouble and that he thinks Louis will have the same. Conn, by the way, does not think too highly of Louis. He is anxious to get in with the Bomber without delay but his master-minds are having a caution and holding him back until he grows to be a bigger boy.

McCoy's last fight was with Conn in the Garden ring and Al didn't miss by much of winning and thus recording a most startling upset. He and his pilot, Bill Brennan, claim that but for Conn's out-of-bounds punches McCoy would have had enough stamina left for a closing rally which would undoubtedly have gained him the decision.

With McCoy popping off and Conn yelling so loud he can be heard all the way from Pittsburgh and the public in a clamor for the tickets to the Goodwin A. C. classic, the Brown Bomber is remaining as indifferent and nonchalant as ever. In fact he has nothing to say, except that maybe McCoy is talking a little too much and that he might come to regret it.

LOUIS SHOWS CROWD

Quietly and methodically, with neither a smile nor a grimace, Louis is going about his conditioning work, while attracting a big crowd to Buckley's gym where he is annihilating his sparring partners. Joe is generally very generous with them but bears down for a minute or so of each sparring round and really leaves them limp with short left hooks which travel but inches, and destructive rights at longer range.

An attractive preliminary card for Boston's first heavyweight championship fight which threatens to draw a record crowd to the Garden, consists of five six-rounders: Frankie Britt vs. Holman Williams, Billy Tordiglione vs. Fred Cabral, Al Dutra vs. Nick Sullo, Bill Weinberg vs. Tony Ferry, and Harold Harris vs. Frank Topazio.

"THERE'S THE CLINCHER"—Al McCoy drives terrific right into heavy bag at Kelley's as he prepares for Monday bout with Champion Joe Louis. Note the vigor with which McCoy punches. He's out to stop the king.

Red Sox, Nats Open 1941 in Washington

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (INS)—The stage was set today for the opening day of the 1941 baseball season by Ford Frick and Will Harridge, president, respectively, of the National and American leagues.

As per custom the American League inaugural will be on April 14 with Boston playing at Washington. This will be the only game in either league that day. The complete schedules for April 15 follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

St. Louis at Cincinnati.
Pittsburgh at Chicago.
Boston at Philadelphia.
New York at Brooklyn.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington at Boston.
Chicago at Cleveland.
Philadelphia at New York.
Detroit at St. Louis.

Grid Coaches in Rush To Renovate 'T' Models

because of the defensive seven-man line and the close backers-up who were taking little chance playing close in because the forward-pass threat was a minus quantity at the time.

Gradually the game opened up, passing became an integral part of a successful scheme of scoring, six and then five-man lines came into prominence. And the final straw was a four-man defensive line employed by Dick Harlow against Yale this year.

TUSS' TRIPLE WINGBACK

These defensive trends removed many of the obstacles to the success of the T-formation which had given way to the single wingback. This called for the flanking of the defensive tackle with a wingback which made it a simpler matter to run flanking plays.

When the offense began to box the defensive tackle by means of the wingback, the defense started to overshift to offset the scheme. Then was born the double-wingback, and Tuss McLaughrey of Brown went as far as to introduce a triple-wingback system.

Naturally the hundreds of coaches who follow the leaders and make use of the "T" next year will not meet equal successes.

It takes the right type of manpower and ball carriers to make it go, and of course, the defense will catch up with the offense change as soon as the smart coaches sit down with paper and pencil and complete their interminable diagrams.

Essential to the "T's" success is the quarterback who handles the ball on almost every play. The Bears have such men in abundance. There are few better anywhere at this particular assignment than Sid Luckman, Bernie Masterson and Solly Sherman.

Their job calls first, for perfect timing. The quarter must feed the ball to the ball carrier at the exact split second. He must be the team's forward passer. He must employ deception, faking feeding the ball to one back, then another and often giving it to the third man, who hits into the line past him.

As the Bears run from the "T," they need little more than quick opening plays with brush blocks rather than direct blocks. A slight jostling block does the trick rather than an anchored block.

With a man in motion always toward the flank, one defensive man has to stay out wide to protect against flanker plays and thereby enhances the chance of the play succeeding.

Gil Dobie used to say there was no better formation in football than the "T."

Pytlak Deal Fails as Sox Ask for Heath

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—Well, the smoke of the battle has died down here and the dawn's early light finds the Red Sox still without a first class catcher and Roger Cramer still member of the clan.

For a few hours it looked as though Frankie Pytlak, baseball's number one hypochondriac, but a pretty fair receiver, was due to come to Boston in exchange for Doc, but Joe Cronin refused to settle for Frankie alone as compensation for the loss of the highly talented, though disgruntled Cramer.

Cronin and the Cleveland mastermind, Cy Slapnicka, hemmed and hawed for better than two hours last night, but the No Go sign was written all over Joe's Irish pan when he emerged from the conference.

Cronin contended he was entitled to Jeff Heath, along with Pytlak, for turning Cramer over to the Indians, but Slapnicka refused to part with Jeff, despite the fact he has failed the Indians miserably the past two seasons.

Failure of Cronin to swing the deal for Pytlak leaves the Red Sox just about where they were last year as far as their battery outlook is concerned, which means it looks like another one of those seasons for Clan Cronin.

Most significant fact of the meeting was that no one, Cronin included, attempted to talk Connie Mack into parting with his great young catcher, Frankie Hayes.

Boston fandom was hoping that Connie would succumb to the magic carried around by Tom Yawkey in his pocketbook and part with Hayes.

Now it looks as though Connie meant it when he said he is building for another pennant and will keep all his top-flight operatives.

However, it's still a long stretch to the opening whistle, and maybe, between now and then, Cronin can come up with a man to fill the spot Jimmy Foxx insists he has definitely abandoned.

ANNE PAGE WINS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12 (INS)—Anne Page of Merion, Pa., dethroned defending champion Hope Knowles of Philadelphia, 15-8, 8-15, 15-11 and 15-9, to win the Atlantic coast squash racquets championship.

BRADLEY, AILING, 81 TODAY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 12 (AP)—Resting in his beautiful Blue Grass mansion, Col. Edward Riley Bradley, turfman, is 81 years old today.

The famous horse breeder, whose thoroughbreds won four Kentucky Derbies, spent the day with his sister, Mrs. Catherine Bailey of Philadelphia, the only guest at Idle Hour Farm. The colonel's health these days is poor.

If Kentucky's weather continues to be pleasant, Bradley plans to remain here until Jan. 1, when he will leave for his annual visit to Palm Beach, Fla., where he has a night club enterprise.

The Colonel suffered an emotional setback last May when Bimelech, his prize pet, failed to win the Kentucky Derby, losing to longshot Gallahadion.

Olin Gentry, Idle Hour Farm manager, said today Bimelech is at Hialeah Park in Florida, completely recovered from his foot injury and "doin' fine." Bim is prepping for Hialeah's $50,000 Widener Handicap.

Generous with orphans and needy children, ol Bradley already has made his yearly contribution of food and money for the unfortunate youngsters' Christmas season.

Fighter Sikes Better Today

MEMPHIS, Ten., Dec. 12 (AP)—Heavyweight Bob Sikes, who took a bad mauling and suffered a brain concussion last night in dropping a 10-round decision to Pat Comiskey of Paterson, N. J., had an uncomfortable night, but appeared somewhat better today, his physician reported.

Dr. A. L. Blecker described the concussion as mild. He said Sikes' right kidney was also injured, and that the fighter probably would be in the hospital for a week.

The Pine Bluff, Ark., boxer was floored six times during the early rounds. In the fourth his seconds threw in the towel, but Referee Fred Getz continued the fight.

Schmeling Parachute Trooper

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (INS)—Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champion, who now reportedly is one of Germany's parachute troopers, still is first and foremost a pugilist.

Schmeling's thoughts on the subject became known today following an interview he gave by radio in Berlin to E. D. Ward, formerly of Glen View, Ill., which was picked up by the short wave station of WBBM in Chicago.

Asked by Ward if he planned a ring comeback, Schmeling answered:

"I've never retired, not yet."

The ex-champion added, however, that he is considering no bouts at present. He said he had received a letter from Billy McConnell, New York boxing promoter, stating that Jack Dempsey was planning a comeback and asking if he, Schmeling, would be interested in facing Dempsey.

Schmeling stated he still receives much "fan mail" from the United States, and also gifts.

EX-SENATOR DIAL DEAD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (INS)—Former Senator Nathaniel B. Dial of South Carolina, who served in the Senate from 1918 to 1924, was dead at his home here today. He was 78 years old, and had lived in Washington since his retirement from the Senate.
